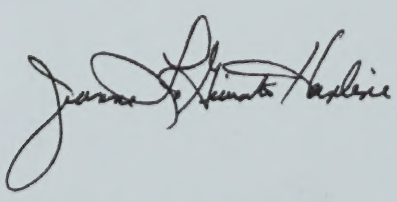
FOREWORD

It is with great pleasure that we present the 2008 Edition of The Official Catholic Directory. It remains the premier resource for matters relating to the Catholic Church in the United States of America.

In this edition, we have included a special section highlighting the bicentennial celebrations of the archdioceses of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Louisville (formerly Bardstown). As four of the oldest dioceses in the United States, they hold a special place in history for helping to establish the roots of Catholicism in a burgeoning and unfamiliar country.



Also included is an overview of Pope Benedict XVI's first papal visit to the United States. Bringing his message "Christ our Hope" to Washington and New York, Pope Benedict addressed throngs of faithful in sold-out stadiums, and also engaged in open dialogue with government heads, U.N. members, educators, and various religious leaders.

The companion CD contains The Hierarchy of the Catholic Church, a new feature which contains nearly 700 biographical sketches of members of the Catholic hierarchy. The CD also includes several useful indexes not in the print directory.

Along with Volume One, we have included The Official Catholic Directory, Part II in your subscription. Produced in the fall, these two CDs contain updates and new listings not present in the main volume, along with the archdioceses and dioceses of the world reprinted with permission from the Vatican.

While we strive to produce a concise and accurate volume, nothing would have been accomplished without the help and cooperation of the many ecclesiastical authorities, diocesan officials, religious and laity who were instrumental in organizing the substantial amount of information needed to publish a successful directory. We would like to thank them all for their tireless work and invaluable assistance. Also a special thanks to the archdioceses of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Louisville, for providing articles on their respective bicentennials.

Sincerely,

Jeanne LoGiurato Hanline

Restoration of St. James Catholic Church
Louisville, Kentucky

Timeless Worship Spaces and Fine Works of Art

The Baroque-Byzantine style church was originally decorated by the Conrad Schmitt Studios in 1927. Through the years, the church had suffered severe plaster damage, due to a failing roof, and the ornate decorative scheme had been painted over. Aided with black and white photos, an investigative study was conducted by the Studio to determine the exact colors and patterns of the historic decoration. A section of scaffold was erected and a sample of the original scheme was created, offering a dramatic visual representation of the proposed restoration. CSS created fundraising boards and brochures, describing the project, helping to generate enthusiasm and raise funds for the restoration. CSS was privileged to, once again, be of service to the parish of St. James and honored to be a part of their special rededication ceremony on September 2, 2007.

Travels, consistory, writings keep Pope Benedict busy in 2007

By John Thavis

VATICAN CITY (CNS) -- Pope Benedict XVI never gives the impression of being overburdened, yet a look back at 2007 reveals a long list of papal activities and achievements.

The pope's output included four major documents and a lengthy book, more than 200 speeches and sermons, two foreign trips and three in Italy, the creation of new cardinals, and encounters with a lineup of world leaders, including U.S. President George W. Bush.

In April -- just before celebrating his 80th birthday -- the pope published "Jesus of Nazareth," which made the case that Christ must be understood as the Son of God on a divine mission, not as a mere moralist or social reformer. In six months, the book had sold more than 2 million copies worldwide.

In June, the pope issued a 55-page letter to Chinese Catholics, setting out new guidelines to favor cooperation between clandestine Catholic communities and those officially registered with the government.

The pope's letter strongly criticized the limits placed by the Chinese government on the Church's activities, but it invited civil authorities to a fresh and serious dialogue. Hopeful signs followed, as China and the Vatican agreed on several bishops' appointment.

In July, in a long-awaited and much-debated document, the pope relaxed restrictions on the use of the Tridentine Mass, the Latin-language liturgy that predates the Second Vatican Council.

The pope said Mass celebrated according to the 1962 Roman Missal should be made available in every parish where groups of the faithful desire it -- though he said the new Roman Missal, introduced in 1970, remains the ordinary way of Catholic worship.

November saw the release of the pope's second encyclical, "Spe Salvi" (on Christian hope), which warned that without faith in God humanity lies at the mercy of ideologies that can lead to "the greatest forms of cruelty and violations of justice."

One brief and unexpected document came in June, when the pope stipulated that a two-thirds majority is always required to elect a new pope. The document did away with a more flexible rule that allowed for a simple majority election in case of an impasse.

The pope approved publication of other documents issued at the Vatican in 2007, including a text by the International Theological Commission that critiqued the traditional concept of limbo and said there are good reasons to hope that babies who die without being baptized go to heaven.

He traveled to Brazil in May, his first papal trip to Latin America and the longest journey of his pontificate. Opening the Fifth General Conference of the Bishops of Latin America and the Caribbean, he warned against inroads by secularism, threats against the family and an erosion of traditional Latin American values.

Visiting Austria in September, the pope prayed at a Marian shrine with tens of thousands of pilgrims. His Italian travels took him to Pavia, where he prayed at the tomb of St. Augustine; to Assisi in the footsteps of St. Francis; and to Naples for the opening of an interreligious conference.

The pope continued to gradually replace Roman Curia officials, but his most important set of appointments came this fall, when he named 23 new cardinals. Those receiving the red hat in a November consistory included two Americans: Cardinal John P. Foley, head of the Knights of the Holy Sepulcher, and Cardinal Daniel N. DiNardo of Galveston-Houston.

In June, the pope met Bush for the first time for talks that focused on the precarious situation of Christians in Iraq and other conflicts in the Middle East. The Vatican took the opportunity to express the hope for a negotiated settlement to "the conflicts and crises that are tormenting the region."

On other issues, the pope and the president examined moral and religious questions, including "the defense and promotion of life, marriage and the family," the Vatican said.

The pope enhanced the Vatican agency that coordinates relations with Muslims, appointing Cardinal Jean-Louis Tauran as head of the Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue.

In October, 138 Muslim experts wrote a letter to the pontiff calling for new dialogue efforts based on the shared belief in one God, in God's love for humanity and in people's obligation to love one another. In response, the pope invited a varied group of Muslim scholars to meet with him and Vatican experts sometime next year.

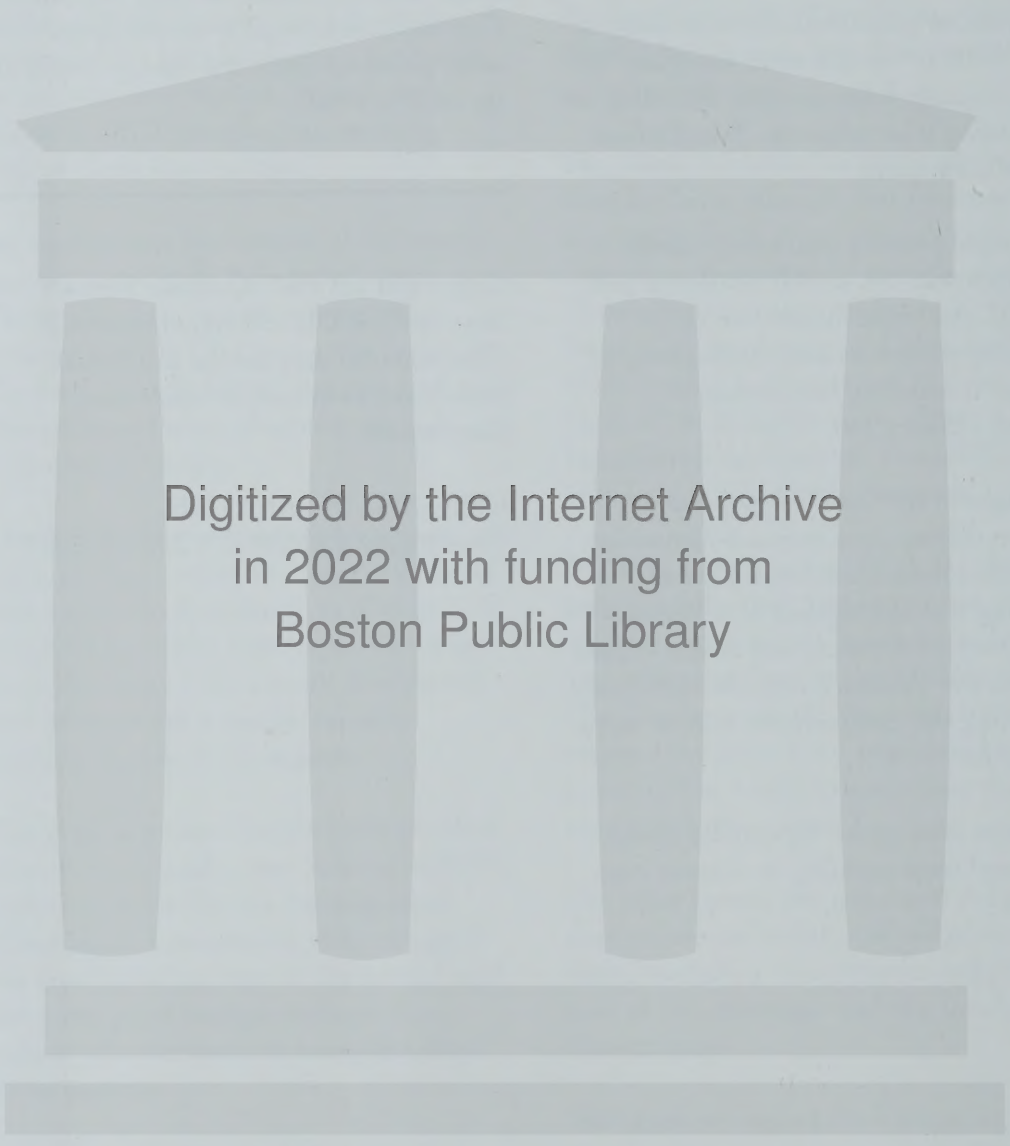
The Vatican's saintmakers were busy in 2007, with 17 beatification liturgies. The pope canonized five people, including a Franciscan friar who was Brazil's first native-born saint.

One papal priority that rarely made headlines was his weekly audience talk. In 2007, the pope focused on early Christian witnesses and theologians, in essence continuing his version of Church History 101.



Throughout the year, the pope and Vatican offices gave increased attention to environmental concerns. Global warming was the subject of a Vatican-sponsored conference, and at the United Nations the Vatican's representative said protecting the environment was a "moral imperative."

The pope also spoke repeatedly about the moral responsibility to respect creation and share resources. In Austria, he even proposed that Sunday be considered not just a day of rest but as "the church's weekly feast of creation."

The Vatican also collaborated in a reforestation project in Hungary designed to offset carbon emissions from Vatican City and announced it would install solar panels to meet the energy needs of its audience hall.

Celebrating the Bicentennials of the Archdioceses of Boston, Louisville, New York, and Philadelphia

by Peter Finney

There were many spiritually fluorescent images that composed the breathtaking kaleidoscope of Pope Benedict XVI's pastoral visit to the United States April 15-20, 2008 – his haunting presence kneeling at ground zero in Manhattan; his admission of human frailty at St. Patrick Cathedral; his "Sermon on the Mound" at Yankee Stadium; and his private meeting with five sexual abuse survivors from the Boston Archdiocese.

Those moments were so intense it might be easy to overlook the stated purpose of his first trip to the U.S. as pope: to address the United Nations General Assembly on the state of human rights across the world and to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the 1808 designation of Baltimore as the first American archdiocese and the creation of the dioceses of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Bardstown, Ky. (now Louisville).

In his April 20 homily at Yankee Stadium – his final major event on U.S. soil – Pope Benedict honored the legacy of faith passed on through the generations in those areas since 1808. He also made it clear the Kingdom of God has yet to come, and he urged Catholics, "(F)ollow faithfully in the footsteps of those who have gone before you! Hasten the coming of God's Kingdom in this land!"

He likened the small Catholic communities in Baltimore, Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Bardstown in 1808 to the early Christian communities, filled with spiritual fervor.

"The Church in America has been built up in fidelity to the twin commandments of love of God and love of neighbor," Pope Benedict said. "In this land of freedom and opportunity, the Church has united a widely diverse flock in the profession of faith and, through her many educational, charitable and social works, has also contributed significantly to the growth of American society as a whole."

The bicentennial celebration recalls "a watershed" in U.S. Church history, the pope said, citing the successive waves of Catholic immigrants from many countries "whose traditions have so enriched the Church in America" and whose faith supported the burgeoning network of churches, schools, hospitals, and other social institutions. He spoke of parents, passing on the faith to their children, and a seemingly limitless supply of priests and nuns who not only cared for souls but also made an "incalculable contribution" to children's well-being through the formation of Catholic schools.

"How many 'spiritual sacrifices pleasing to God' have been offered up in these two centuries!" Pope Benedict said. "In this land of religious liberty, Catholics found freedom not only to practice their faith, but also to participate fully in civic life, bringing their deepest moral convictions to the public square and cooperating with their neighbors in shaping a vibrant, democratic society."

The bicentennial, however, should be more than "an occasion of gratitude for graces received," the pope said. "It is also a summons to move forward with firm resolve to use wisely the blessings of freedom, in order to build a future of hope for coming generations."

Furthering the Kingdom of God, he said, "means being constantly alert for the signs of its presence, and working for its growth in every sector of society … facing the challenges of present and future with confidence in Christ's victory and a commitment to extending his reign … not losing heart in the face of resistance, adversity, and scandal … overcoming every separation between faith and life, and countering false gospels of freedom and happiness … rejecting a false dichotomy between faith and political life, since, as the Second Vatican Council put it, 'there is no human activity – even in secular affairs – which can be withdrawn from God's dominion'"(Lumen Gentium, 36).

Established by Pope Pius VII on Nov. 6, 1789 – eight months after the effective date of the U.S. Constitution – Baltimore was the first Catholic diocese in the U.S. and served the original 13 states. By 1804, its boundaries stretched north to Maine, west to Idaho and south to the Florida panhandle. Today the archdiocese comprises the city of Baltimore and eight surrounding counties and serves a Catholic population of about 510,000. Archbishop Edwin F. O'Brien launched the local bicentennial celebration just before the papal visit.

"The roots of the Catholic Church in the United States are deeply planted here in Baltimore," Archbishop O'Brien said. "We are so very proud of our important role in our church's history and look forward to celebrating this historic anniversary with the greater Baltimore community."

The Baltimore Archdiocese planned to highlight the bicentennial with a lecture series in honor of John Carroll, America's first archbishop.

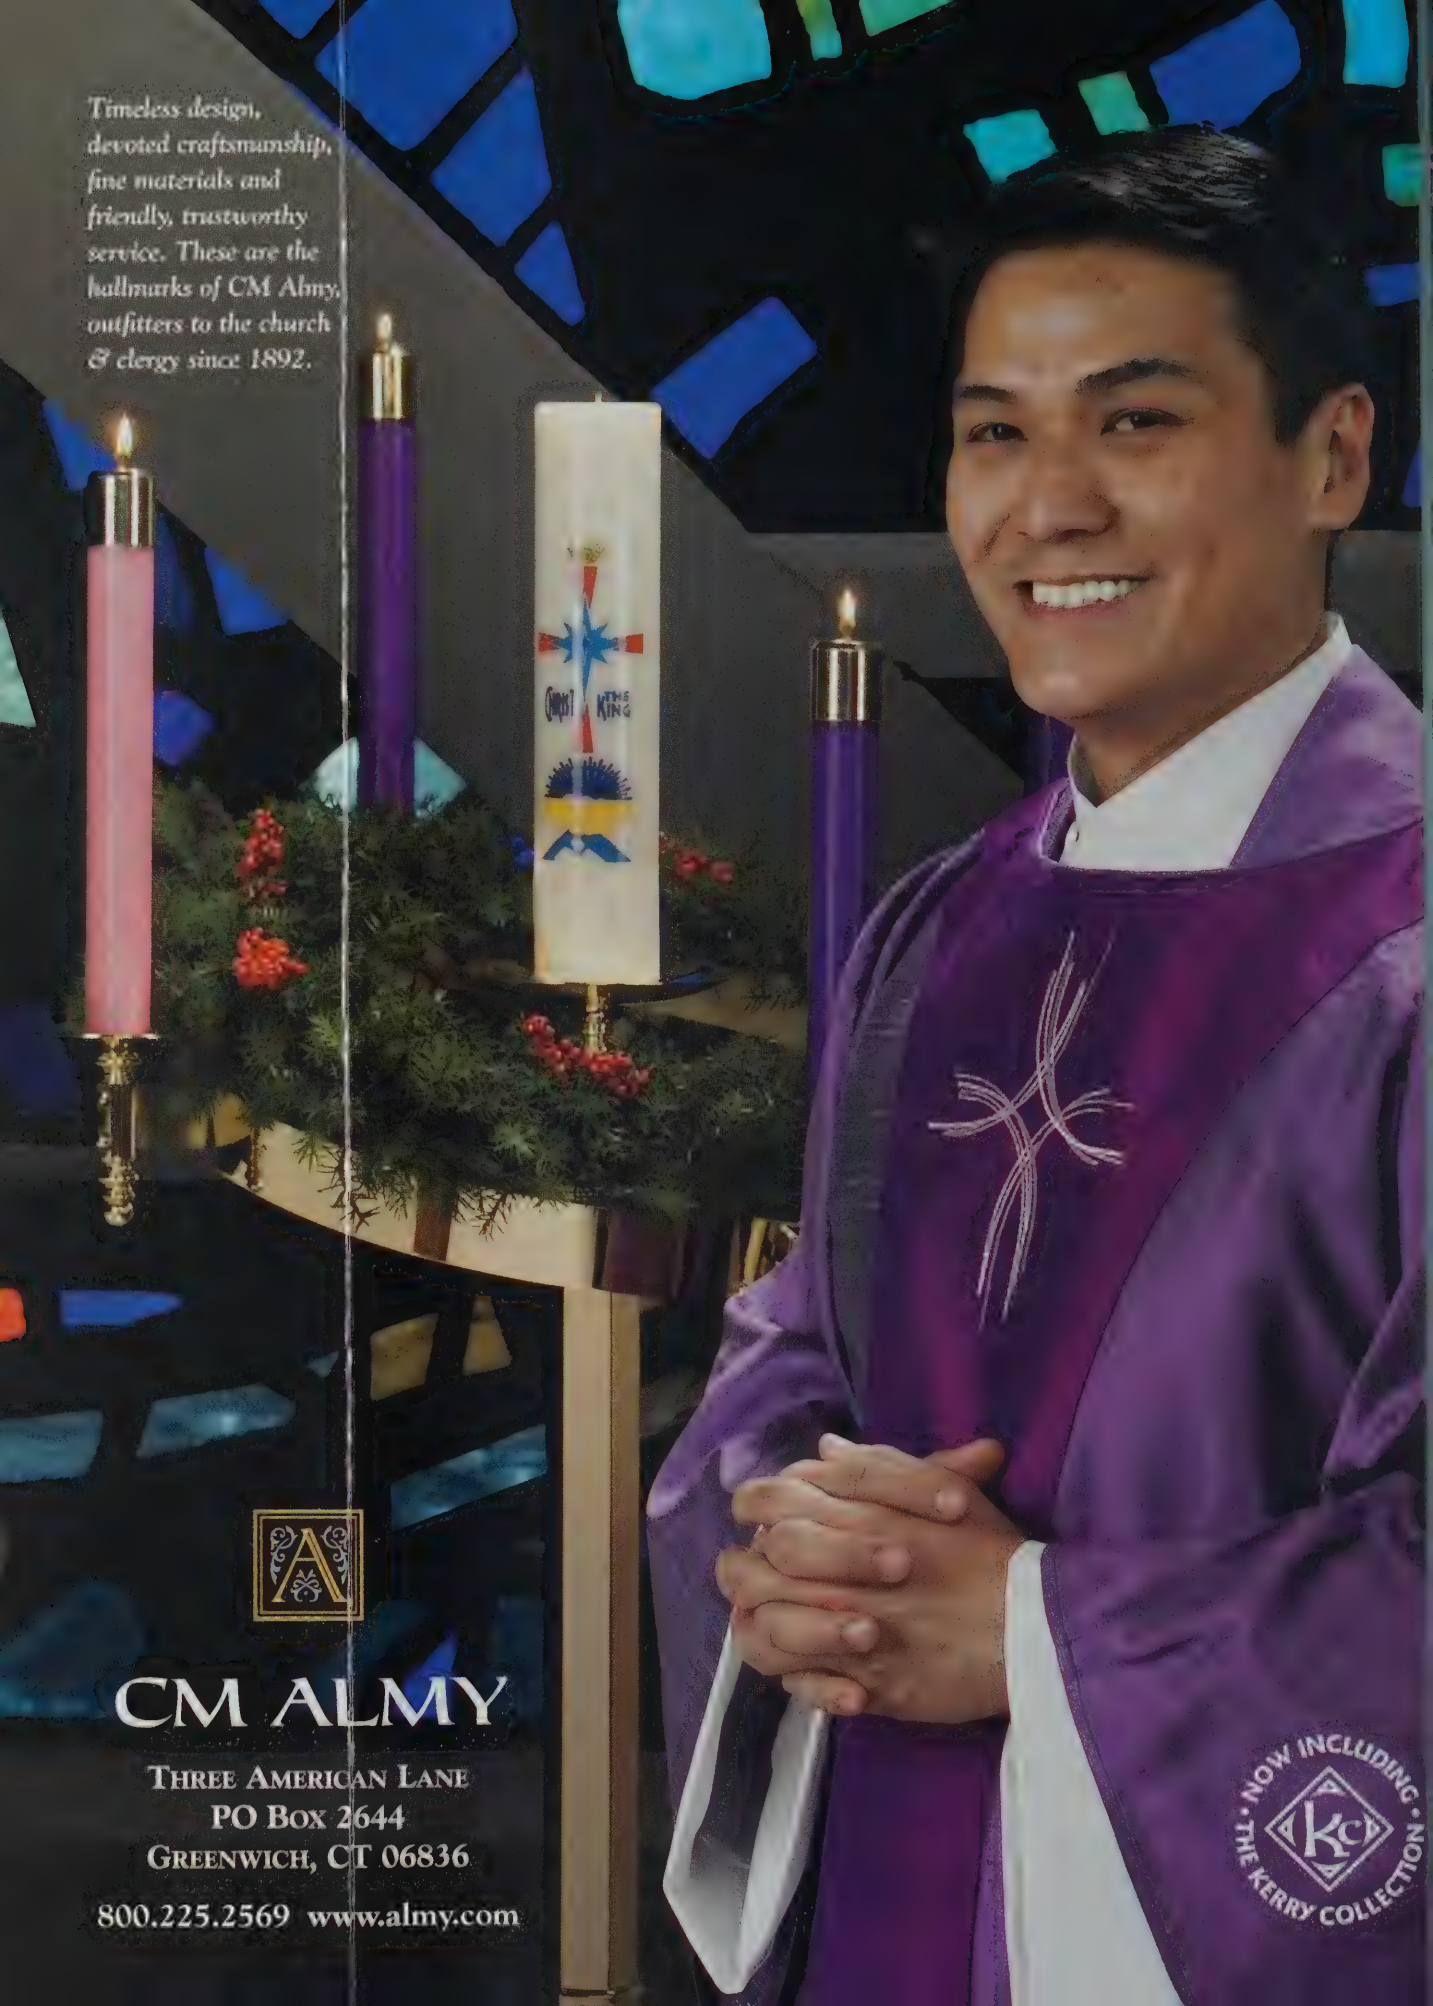
Here are some highlights of the four dioceses celebrating bicentennials in 2008:



Boston: First bishop was Bishop Jean Cheverus. Elevated to an archdiocese in 1875. Serves about 2 million Catholics in 294 parishes. Nearly 50,000 students are enrolled in Catholic schools. Cardinal Sean O'Malley thanked Pope Benedict for allocating 3,000 tickets to the Yankee Stadium Mass for members of the Boston Archdiocese. Other bicentennial celebrations included major men's and women's conferences that drew about 10,000 participants in April.

Louisville: The first bishop of what was then known as Bardstown, Ky., was Bishop Benedict Flaget. Bardstown was known as the "American West" and included the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and the future states of Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and parts of Arkansas. In 1841 the diocese was moved from Bardstown to Louisville. Elevated to an archdiocese in 1937. Today it is home to about 200,000 Catholics. Several traveling concerts celebrating "200 Years of Sacred Music in Kentucky" were scheduled across the archdiocese to mark the anniversary.

New York: First bishop was Bishop Richard Luke Concanen, who because of travel embargoes imposed by both the English and the French never set foot in New York. He died in Naples in 1810. Elevated to an archdiocese in 1850. What began as an ecclesiastical jurisdiction of the state of New York and half the state of New Jersey is now home to about 2.5 million Catholics in the boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx, Staten Island, the City of New York, and the seven counties north of the city, Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Rockland, Sullivan, Ulster, and Westchester.

Philadelphia: First bishop was Bishop Michael Egan. Elevated to an archdiocese in 1875. Philadelphia had just 11 priests and 30,000 Catholics, about 3 percent of the local population, when the diocese was carved out of Baltimore. The diocese comprised Pennsylvania, Delaware, and the southern half of New Jersey. Today the archdiocese is home to 1.48 million Catholics in Philadelphia, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery and Bucks counties. Catholics represent 38 percent of the population. Cardinal Justin Rigali marked the bicentennial by cutting a giant birthday cake on the steps of the Cathedral Basilica of Sts. Peter and Paul in April.

Archdiocese of Boston

Bicentennial

1808-2008

The Archdiocese of Boston
By Father Robert M. O'Grady

Fragile Beginnings

Within twenty years of its founding in 1789, the first episcopal see in the United States at Baltimore had grown beyond expectations and exceeded the capacity for a single bishop to govern. This first bishop, John Carroll, was responsible for the pastoral care of the entire territory east of the Mississippi, excluding present-day Florida and southern Alabama.

Holy Cross Cathedral

Understanding his predicament, Bishop Carroll sought assistance from Rome in the form of a coadjutor bishop. The first of these bishop-elects, Dominic Laurence Graessl, was appointed in January of 1784 but died before his appointment documents could arrive. In 1795 Father Leonard Neale was appointed as Graessl's replacement, but his full episcopal ordination was also delayed. Carroll had intended to send the new bishop to Philadelphia, but was again stymied in 1799 when he was forced to appoint Neale as president of the nascent Georgetown College, where he remained even after his ordination on December 7, 1800. Following the restoration of the Jesuits, the college was returned to the Society of Jesus in 1806 and this provided Carroll with full-time assistance in governing the flock scattered across the burgeoning country.

The Catholic population at the time was largest in Maryland followed by pockets in Philadelphia and New York with smaller communities in Boston and in the southern ports of Charleston and Savannah. A larger Catholic settlement had been established at New Orleans, but it had been a diocese before becoming part of the United States. There had been hints both by Bishop Carroll and by authorities in Rome that the slow growth of the Catholic communities in the new nation might accelerate. The Holy See warned Bishop Carroll earlier that the time might come when the vast territory of the diocese would need to be divided into other sees even should the incumbent object. That time came without objection from the incumbent on April 8, 1808 when Pope Pius VII, with the papal bull Ex debito pastoralis, decreed the creation of four new dioceses and the elevation of the premier see of Baltimore to metropolitan status. The first of these new sees was to be located at New York, whose territory would be the state of New York and the northern half of New Jersey. The second announced was Philadelphia which would serve all of Pennsylvania and Delaware and the southern half of New Jersey. The third would be Boston with the states of New Hampshire, Massachusetts (including present-day Maine), Rhode Island, Connecticut, and Vermont. And finally Bardstown which would serve the territory now constituting Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Tennessee, Ohio, and Wisconsin. The new archdiocese of Baltimore would be left with Maryland, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, and Virginia (including present-day West Virginia).

The original Holy Cross Cathedral

Some questioned the wisdom of creating a see at Boston because of the tiny Catholic population and the dearth of priests. Not that Catholicism was entirely foreign in the territory of the new diocese. Jesuit missionaries had made notable accomplishments in Maine and New England's proto-martyr, Father Sebastian Rale, SJ lost his life serving the area's indigenous peoples. However fear of papists and especially of Jesuits had led to the enactment of anti-priest laws in the Bay Colony as early as 1647 and New England, especially Boston, remained inhospitable venues for Roman Catholics and priests up to and throughout the time of the American Revolution.

Holy Cross Church and Parish

Established in 1788, the first Holy Cross church served the entirety of the New England parish and was located on School Street, directly across from Boston's Old City Hall. When the congregation outgrew this church a new one was built with ecumenical support on Franklin Street. The parishioners provided the greatest portion, while a committee of local Protestants headed by John Adams contributed a significant amount, followed by substantial donations from Catholics abroad. Architect Charles Bulfinch, designer of the federal capitol in Washington, D.C. and the new state house at Boston, provided his services to the fledgling community free of charge, emphasizing that not all non-Catholics saw the Roman Catholics as a threat. The new church was completed and on September 29, 1803 Bishop John Carroll came from Baltimore for the solemn dedication of the new Holy Cross Church. What the parishioners could not have foreseen was that their parish church, the only Catholic church in Massachusetts, would become the first cathedral in New England.

Leadership

With the establishment of the new diocese in Boston there was an urgent need to find the right man to be bishop. A few priests, such as French naval chaplain Father Claude Bouchard, had been active in and around the area. Bouchard made some progress but his self-styled title of Abbé, and a penchant for rich living, soon caused problems which required Bishop Carroll to remove him from pastoral care. Another Frenchman, Father Rousselete, came to replace the Abbé but he ran into troubles with a local priest named Father John Thayer. A graduate of Yale and a convert from Protestantism, Thayer had been ordained a priest in Paris before returning home to ignite conflict internally with Father Rousselete and externally with area non-Catholics. Once again Bishop Carroll had to reach from Baltimore to solve the problem, appointing French exile priest Father Francis Anthony Matignon. Upon his arrival in 1792 Matignon immediately set about the process of reconciliation within the fractured Catholic community, building kindly relations with the Bostonians and New Englanders. Four years later one of Father Matignon's students, Father Jean Lefebvre de Cheverus, also an exile from France, arrived to assist his former teacher whom Bishop Carroll had appointed as vicar general for New England. The cordial relationships that developed under the leadership of these two priests steered the tiny Catholic community in a positive direction of growth and expansion. So well known were the accomplishments of the teacher-student team that even Saint Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton sought counsel from them.

Yet some difficulty remained in finding bishop candidates for each of the new sees. While New York had a larger and more stable population, there was no local priest deemed suitable for the governance of the new see. On the other hand, Boston had fewer people but several capable priests who would make fine bishops. Matignon knew that he was being considered for the new Boston see but fought at every opportunity and used all possible means to avoid the episcopal office. Highlighting his failing health seemed to convince Bishop Carroll that he was unavailable if not incapable of assuming the new responsibilities. Matignon pushed for his former student to be named to Boston and in fact the success of Father Cheverus' ministry, his calm demeanor, his friendly relationships and ready reception among non-Catholics, and his constant availability to the far-flung flock of his huge parish, singled him out as the obvious choice.

Appointment and Ordination of Cheverus

Father Matignon continued his priestly ministry beside Father Cheverus as the two labored tirelessly for their Catholic people and grew steadily in the esteem of all the locals. Bishop Carroll wrote of John Cheverus in recommending him to be the first bishop of Boston; "[he is] in the prime of life, with health to undergo any necessary exertion, universally esteemed for his unwearied zeal and his remarkable facility and eloquence in announcing the word of God, virtuous and with charm of manner that recalled Catholics to their duties and disarmed Protestants of their prejudices." Both Carroll's recommendations and the Holy See's appointment of Cheverus as Boston's first bishop affirmed Matignon's urgings. Matignon delighted in the appointment of his one-time student as the first bishop of the new see and stayed by the bishop's side until his own death on September 18, 1818.

The letters of appointment for Boston's first bishop took two years to arrive in the United States, so it was not until November 1, 1810 that Archbishop John Carroll was able to ordain the bishop-elect to the fullness of the priesthood. The ordination Mass was celebrated at St. Peter Church, the tiny proto-cathedral of the new archdiocese on Saratoga Street in Baltimore. The new bishop returned to Boston after meetings with Archbishop Carroll, his coadjutor, Archbishop Leonard Neale, and Bishops Egan of Philadelphia and Flaget of Bardstown. At meetings, provincial or local, and on official documents and in correspondence, Bishop Cheverus signed himself simply as †John of Boston. The work of the early Jesuits in Maine and of Bishop Cheverus and Father Matignon were crucial in setting the Church of Boston on its path to growth both before and after its creation.

Contributions Towards Growth
Since Cheverus, Boston has had eight diocesan bishops: Benedict Joseph Fenwick, SJ; John Barnard Fitzpatrick; John Joseph Williams; William Henry O'Connell; Richard James Cushing; Humberto Sousa Medeiros; Bernard Francis Law; and the incumbent Seán Patrick O'Malley, OFM. Cap.

Benedict Joseph Fenwick, SJ
Son of a colonial Maryland family and second bishop of Boston, Benedict Joseph Fenwick entered the Society of Jesus and was ordained on June 11, 1808. Thereafter he served in New York for nine years, was twice president of Georgetown College, vicar general for Georgia and the Carolinas, and pastor in Maryland. He was ordained bishop on November 1, 1825, in Baltimore by Archbishop Ambrose Maréchal and took possession of his diocese on December 4. He found that the number of priests had fallen to three, the number of Catholics had increased to 7,000, and that he had only eight churches in addition to the cathedral to serve them.

Bishop John Bernard Fitzpatrick
Fenwick had ordained his successor, Boston-born John Bernard Fitzpatrick, on March 24, 1844, in the chapel of the Visitation nuns at Georgetown. During his two years as coadjutor of Boston, Fitzpatrick made visitations to Maine and Vermont and administered confirmation in all parts of the diocese, where his charity made him a beloved figure known to all as Bishop John. Gifted and urbane, he also won entry into the society of the Cabots and the Lodges. In 1853 he proposed the separation of the northern states into the two dioceses of Burlington and Portland, though he opposed as premature the proposal that Boston be raised to an archdiocese.

Archbishop John Joseph Williams
The fourth bishop of Boston and its first archbishop had served as pastor of St. James in Boston and vicar general before his nomination as coadjutor cum iure succesionis on January 8, 1866. During the 40 years following his episcopal ordination on March 11, churches and schools multiplied beyond expectation and diocesan synods were held in 1868, 1872, 1879, and 1886. He endorsed Archbishop Martin J. Spalding's proposal for a compromise solution on the debate of infallibility at Vatican Council I, and at his suggestion the Diocese of Springfield was created June 14, 1870, embracing five counties of central and western Massachusetts.

Two years later, when Rhode Island was separated from the Diocese of Hartford as the Diocese of Providence, Williams gave up four counties in southeastern Massachusetts and three towns in Plymouth County to assure sufficient population for the new diocese. The rapid growth of the Church in New England was recognized on February 12, 1875, when the New England states were constituted a province, with Boston as the archdiocesan see. Williams received the pallium from Cardinal John McCloskey on May 2, 1875. Following the dedication of the new Cathedral of the Holy Cross on December 8, 1875, the archbishop built St. John's Seminary, Brighton, blessing the first building on September 18, 1884 and staffing it with Sulpicians headed by the Abbé John Baptist Hogan. A second building was opened in 1890 and the chapel was completed in 1899. In response to the constant growth of his flock, which now included immigrants from Portugal, Poland, Lithuania, Germany, Italy, and the Near East, Williams set up a matrimonial tribunal in 1893 and named a superintendent for archdiocesan schools in 1897. By 1904 Boston led the entire world in contributions to the missions through its branches of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

William Henry O'Connell
Boston's fifth ordinary and second archbishop brought to his task not only experience as an ordinary in Portland, but Roman training and a worldwide comprehension of the Church. During his 37-year rule he undertook the reorganization of the archdiocese, an intensification of apostolic activities, and an adjustment of relations with the community. The centenary of the diocese was observed in 1908, the fifth synod was held February 11, 1909, the duties of the chancellor were broadened, 32 new parishes were set up in four years, and annual retreats for the clergy ordered. "The Pilot" was purchased as a diocesan journal, Boston College moved from its original location in the South End to a new campus in suburban Newton, and the seminary was transferred from Sulpician to archdiocesan management. Father James Anthony Walsh was released to found Maryknoll, the American foreign mission society while Passionists and the Religious of the Cenacle came to Boston to direct retreats. On November 27, 1911, O'Connell was created cardinal priest, with the title church of St. Clement, and took part in the election of Pius XII in 1939.

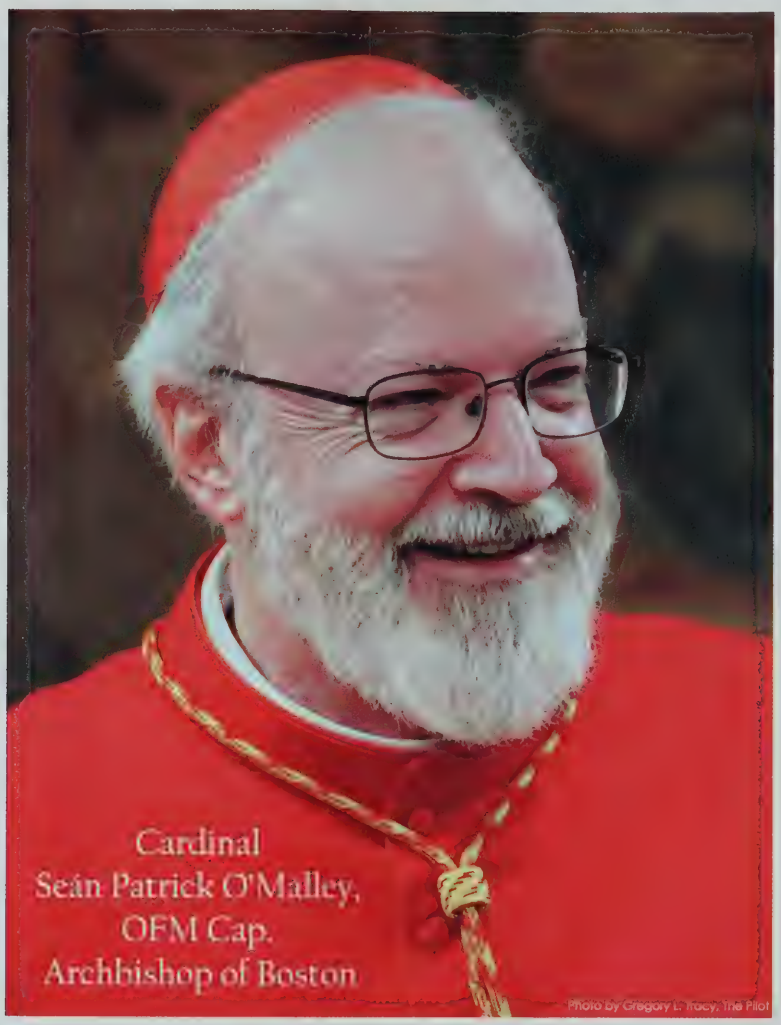
Richard James Cardinal Cushing



At O'Connell's death, his auxiliary, Richard James Cushing, was named administrator and became archbishop of Boston September 25, 1944. Born in Boston August 24, 1896, he attended Boston College and St. John's Seminary, was ordained May 26, 1921, and ordained bishop June 10, 1929. He was raised to the College of Cardinals December 15, 1958, as cardinal priest with the title church of Santa Susanna. Under his direction the number of colleges in the archdiocese doubled from three to six and, by 1963, 13 new central secondary schools had increased the total to 100, educating 24,259 students, and elementary schools, both parochial and private, had increased to 241 with 118,000 students. Social works were inaugurated to meet the needs of the aged, the handicapped, and the homeless. The vast building program reached every corner of the archdiocese from seminary and chancery to hospitals, schools, catechetical centers, churches, convents, and rectories.

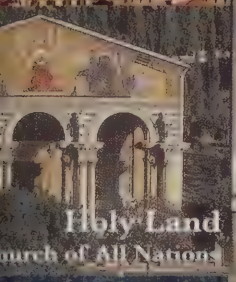
Humberto Sousa Cardinal Medeiros

In 1970, after a period of declining health, Cardinal Cushing resigned, and was succeeded by Humberto S. Medeiros, Bishop of Brownsville, Texas. Born in 1915 in the Portuguese Azores, Medeiros and his family moved to America in 1931 and settled in the town of Fall River, some 50 miles south of Boston. Medeiros studied at the Catholic University of America where he earned an M.A. degree in 1942 and a Licentiate in Sacred Theology in 1946, before being ordained on June 15, 1946. In 1949, after serving as a curate in Fall River for five years, he was sent to pursue studies in Washington and then in Rome, where he earned a Doctorate in Sacred Theology in 1951 from Gregorian University. Returning to Fall River, Medeiros held increasingly responsible positions until he was made a monsignor in 1958 and became pastor of St. Michael Parish in 1960. On April 14, 1966, Pope Paul VI named Monsignor Medeiros the second bishop of Brownsville, Texas, where he became a national figure for trying to balance the interests of the landowners of the region with the rights of local farm workers. When Cardinal Cushing reached his final days, the Holy See designated Humberto Medeiros to replace him, and he was installed as Archbishop of Boston on October 7, 1970. Three years later, on February 2, 1973, Pope Paul VI named Medeiros to the College of Cardinals.

Bernard Francis Cardinal Law

On January 24, 1984, the Holy See announced that the Most Reverend Bernard F. Law, bishop of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, would succeed Humberto Medeiros as the eighth bishop and the fourth archbishop of Boston. Born in Torreon, Mexico, November 4, 1931, Bernard F. Law was the son of a U.S. Air Force pilot and traveled extensively. He graduated from Harvard College in 1953, enrolled at St. Joseph Seminary in St. Benedict, Louisiana, and then attended Pontifical College Josephinum at Worthington, Ohio. After his ordination on May 21, 1961, Father Law served as editor of the diocesan newspaper in Jackson, Mississippi, after which he went to Washington, DC for three years as executive director of the Bishop's Committee for Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs. In 1973, he was appointed bishop of the diocese of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Missouri, and in 1984 was named archbishop of Boston. Only a year later, he was elevated to the College of Cardinals.

Seán Patrick Cardinal O'Malley, OFM Cap.
Born in Lakewood, Ohio, June 29, 1944, Patrick O'Malley was professed as a Capuchin on July 14, 1965 and given the religious name Seán. On August 29, 1970, Bishop John B. McDowell, auxiliary of Pittsburgh, ordained him a priest of the Order of Friars Minor Capuchin. Pope John Paul II appointed him as coadjutor bishop of the diocese of St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands on June 2, 1984, before being ordained a bishop on August 2, and becoming the diocesan bishop of the Caribbean on October 16, 1985. Bishop O'Malley was then appointed as the sixth bishop of Fall River on June 16, 1992, and installed at the Cathedral of St. Mary on August 11. On September 3, 2002 he was appointed as the fourth bishop of the Diocese of Palm Beach and installed at the Cathedral of St. Ignatius Loyola on October 19.



Cardinal O'Malley is an active member of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops and in November 2000 he was elected to serve as chairman of their Committee on Consecrated Life. Throughout his years as bishop, he has served on numerous other committees, including Missions, the Administrative Board, Priestly Formation, Hispanic Affairs, Migration, and the Church in Latin America as well as on the board of directors for Catholic Relief Services and the Association for the Development of the Catholic University of Portugal. On July 1, 2003 Pope John Paul II named him the ninth bishop and sixth metropolitan archbishop of Boston and he was installed in the metropolitan cathedral of the Holy Cross on July 30, 2003. Pope Benedict XVI named Archbishop O'Malley to the College of Cardinals on March 24, 2006 and at the same time entrusted to him the titular church of Santa Maria della Vittoria in Rome.

Archdiocese of Louisville

Bicentennial

Exterior of the Cathedral of the Assumption: Set in the middle of the city of Louisville, the Cathedral of the Assumption is 187' x 90' wide, its nave rising 65 feet above the pavement. The cost to build it in 1850 was between $65,000 and $70,000. The modified (American) Gothic design was created by William Keely, one of America's foremost church architects. Early Catholicism in Kentucky

The first Catholics came into Kentucky among the earliest settlers from the coastal colonies in 1775. They included Jane Coomes, believed to be the first teacher in Kentucky, and George Hart, the first physician. Not until 1785 did larger groups, or "leagues," of Catholic families from Maryland begin to enter the region.

These settlers were almost exclusively of British lineage, although many brought with them enslaved African Americans who practiced the Catholic faith. While a few families settled in the Bluegrass, the majority chose an area of promising farmland near Bardstown in central Kentucky. Within a decade, three hundred Catholics were known to live in the area. Even two centuries later, the three rural counties of Marion, Nelson and Washington have significant Catholic populations and are regionally known as "The Kentucky Holy Land."

These frontier Catholics, called by their earlier historian Martin John Spalding "an iron race of pioneers," chose to come west in large groupings in order to sustain their ancestral faith through solidarity and also to strengthen their appeals for a priest to come eventually to the region. Thus, the earliest congregations of Kentucky were lay-gathered, in contrast to the clergy-led initial Catholic settlements on the East and West Coasts.

The earliest resident priests to arrive in Kentucky were Maurice Whelan and William de Rohan, but neither remained long in pastoral service. With the arrival of the twenty-six-year-old Stephen Badin, the first priest to have been ordained in America, clerical stability came to Kentucky. With Badin as leader, other priests came to the region, most notably Charles Nerinckx and the Dominican friars, who made their first American foundation in Washington County in 1805.

The First Inland Diocese of the United States

On April 8, 1808, Pope Pius VII subdivided the primal see of Baltimore by constituting the Dioceses of Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Bardstown. To head the latter see, the first in inland America, the Holy See named Benedict Joseph Flaget who, like Badin, was an exile from the turmoil of the French Revolution.

This "First Bishop of the West" arrived in Kentucky in 1811. Flaget's far-flung area of responsibility covered all the land from the Great Lakes to the Deep South and from the Allegheny Mountains to the Mississippi River. From this "mega-diocese" there would eventually be carved more than forty new dioceses, including Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, and Detroit.

With the arrival of Flaget there began an amazing burst of fervor and institutional energies. Within a dozen years, Flaget would initiate or encourage the following establishments, including many that were the first of their kind in the American West: St. Thomas Seminary (1811), the Sisters of Loretto (1812), the Sisters of Charity of Nazareth (1812), St. Joseph Cathedral at Bardstown (1819), St. Joseph College (1820), St. Mary College (1821), and the Dominican Sisters at Springfield (1822). From such institutions and communities would emerge many of the leaders of American Catholicism in the nineteenth century.

Within the forty years of his tenure, Flaget would welcome to Kentucky Good Shepherd Sisters, Jesuit Fathers and the Trappist monks of Gethsemani Abbey. In addition to such eighteenth-century Holy Land parishes as Holy Cross (1785), St. Charles (1786), and Holy Mary's (1798), Flaget would be responsible for a growing network of congregations such as St. Louis at Louisville (1805), St. Peter at Lexington (1818), Holy Name at Henderson (1824), and Mutter Gottes (Mother of God) at Covington (1842).

Catholic Urban Life in the Nineteenth Century

Late in 1841, the seat of the diocese moved from Bardstown to the city of Louisville, whose population was swelling from the inflow of Germans and Irish. An anti-immigrant riot called "Bloody Monday" in that city on August 6, 1855, resulted in more than twenty deaths.

Louisville's Civil War bishop was the Kentucky-born scholar and writer Martin John Spalding. He oversaw construction of the city's Cathedral of the Assumption (1852) and welcomed the Belgian Xaverian Brothers to their first American foundation (1854) as well as the German Ursuline Sisters (1858). Spalding's successor as Bishop of Louisville was Peter Joseph Lavialle, a native of France and cousin of Bishop Chabrat who came to the United States to serve as a priest in the Diocese

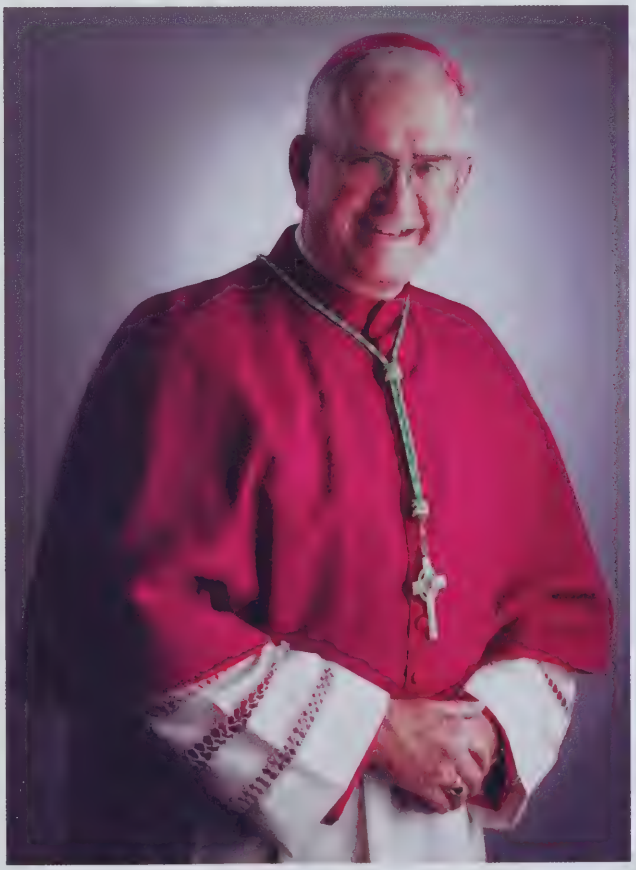
Floersh, known for his piety, caution, and planning abilities. In 1924, Floersh began an episcopate that was to endure for more than 40 years and that helped to shape the diocese profoundly during the middle years of the 20th century.



In 1937 Louisville was constituted a metropolitan see (an archdiocese) with both the Diocese of Covington (established in 1853) and the newly established Diocese of Owensboro as suffragans. The Holy See erected the Diocese of Lexington in 1988.

Several Kentuckians were in official attendance at the Second Vatican Council (1962-65), including Bishop Charles Garrett Maloney, auxiliary bishop to Archbishops Floersh, McDonough, and Kelly; J.L. Garrett of the Southern Baptist Theological of Louisville. Lavialle was not a healthy man, however, and died after only two years as bishop. In 1868, William George McCloskey, first rector of the North American College in Rome, was consecrated as Bishop of Louisville. During his forty-year reign, McCloskey was successful in bringing religious orders of service into the diocese, and he attended to institutional growth by creating new parishes throughout the diocese. At the time of his death he was the oldest Catholic bishop in the United States and had come to be known as the "Nestor of the American Hierarchy."

The Twentieth-Century Experience

Denis O'Donaghue succeeded Bishop McCloskey. Bishop O'Donaghue was called to shepherd the flock during some very difficult days, including World War I and an influenza epidemic. He was an able and gentle man but he became incapacitated by 1924 and was replaced by Nashville native John A.

Seminary; and Sister of Loretto Mary Luke Tobin, the only American female auditor at the council. In these same years, Trappist monk Thomas Merton from his Kentucky abbey of Gethsemani wrote an array of highly influential books in the areas of Christian spirituality, Oriental religions, interfaith understanding and social justice.

In 1967, Philadelphia-born cleric Thomas J. McDonough succeeded Archbishop Floersh. Archbishop McDonough called himself a "Vatican II bishop," and he shepherded the local Church through its most intensive period of activity and change since the days of the early Church in Kentucky. Archbishop McDonough resigned in 1981 and was succeeded by Archbishop Thomas C. Kelly, O.P, who had served as the General Secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops before coming to Louisville. He served the Archdiocese for 25 years and established a strategic planning process that guided many initiatives in the areas of social services, evangelization, lay ministry, multicultural ministry, pastoral care, and education/formation.

The Louisville area has been noted throughout the country during the last generation for its ecumenical and interfaith initiatives. In 1985, the city's Center for Interfaith Relations (formerly the Cathedral Heritage Foundation) and Cathedral parishioners turned their old church into a nationally recognized urban emblem of faith. A center of worship, art, spirituality and social service, it has been celebrated as a model civic symbol that is Catholic in its roots, inner city and interfaith in its outreach.

While Catholics are represented in the Kentucky legislature, none has ever served as full-time governor of the commonwealth. In 1994 Third District (Louisville-area) Congressman Ron Mazzoli retired after twelve consecutive terms in Washington. Anne Meagher Northup, a former delegate to the Kentucky legislature, held this seat from 1994 to 2006.

In June of 2007, Pennsylvania native and Bishop of Knoxville, Joseph E. Kurtz, D.D. was appointed the ninth bishop (and fourth Archbishop) of the Archdiocese of Louisville. Today, the Archdiocese of Louisville extends throughout 24 counties in Central Kentucky and serves nearly 200,000 Catholics.

Serving God's People: Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow

In 2008 the Archdiocese of Louisville celebrates 200 years as a Roman Catholic diocese. It shares the honor of being among the earliest dioceses in the United States with the Archdiocese of New York, the Archdiocese of Boston, and the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, which also were founded in 1808. Only the Archdiocese of Baltimore (1789) and the Archdiocese of New Orleans (1793) were established earlier. The Diocese of Bardstown was founded as the first inland diocese in the United States on April 8, 1808. Its see city moved to Louisville in 1841, and the Diocese of Louisville was elevated to an Archdiocese in 1937.

The Diocese of Bardstown included the states of Kentucky and Tennessee. The first bishop of the diocese, Benedict Joseph Flaget, was given pastoral responsibility for a huge territory to the north and west of Kentucky. Today, more than 40 dioceses in ten states have descended from the Diocese of Bardstown.

Bishop Flaget's territory encompassed an area that is now more than 40 dioceses in 10 states.

The theme for the bicentennial celebration is "Serving God's People: Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow." Bicentennial events began in March 2007 and will continue throughout 2008. Highlights of the bicentennial celebration include:

Formation/Education

- Parish Formation: Materials have been developed for 4 parish – or regionally based – formation events. These three-hour intergenerational events will focus on the themes of beginning, remembering, celebrating, and missioning. These events include prayer, fellowship, and discussion along with creative activities for all ages. Parishes are encouraged to use the materials quarterly beginning in the fall of 2007 with the three other units to be used in the spring of 2008, summer of 2008, and fall of 2008. However, the units can be used at other times and can be incorporated into already existing parish formation programs.

- School/Religious Education: A manual of grade specific activities and lesson plans were developed for use in Catholic elementary schools and parish catechetical programs. This manual provides teachers and religious educators with resources to immerse students in the study of the Archdiocese from its earliest roots to the present time. It includes lessons in all subject areas and across all grade levels. There are 121 lessons including one for kindergarteners on the number 200, a research project dealing with the patron saints of archdiocesan parishes and schools for intermediate students, and a middle school lesson that requires students to map the counties of the Archdiocese. The curriculum guide also contains lessons in special area subjects such as art, music, and physical education. This manual has been distributed to parishes and schools throughout the Archdiocese.

- The kick-off event for the bicentennial was an institute for parish leaders on March 24, 2007. Entitled "Leadership and Ministry in a Changing Church," this conference featured a keynote presentation by Fr. J. Glenn Murray, S.J. Nearly 400 individuals attended and discussed critical issues in multicultural ministry, worship, evangelization, and parish planning.

History:

- Faith and Mission: Parish Histories in Celebration of the 200th Anniversary of the Archdiocese of Louisville, 1808-2008, a full-color history of the parishes of the Archdiocese of Louisville was shipped to parishes in November, 2007.

- The Catholic Extension Society has produced a 2008 bicentennial calendar and has made it available to participating parishes in late October/early November of 2007.

- Two historical documentaries will be aired during 2008 and will be available for sale: The Kentucky Holy Lands and the History of African American Catholics.

Worship:

- April 8, 2008: Day of Catholic Prayer on the Official Founding Date of the Archdiocese:
  - Mass (8:30 a.m.) at St. Thomas Parish in Bardstown, presided by Archbishop Joseph E. Kurtz. 9:30 a.m. Reception and presentation by local genealogist and historian Gerald Thompson.
  - Noon Mass at the Cathedral of the Assumption in Louisville, presided by Archbishop Joseph E. Kurtz.
  - Vespers (7:00 p.m.) at the Basilica of St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral in Bardstown, followed by a presentation by archdiocesan historian Fr. Clyde F. Crews and coffee and dessert reception.

- Youth and youth ministers from throughout the Archdiocese will participate in the Kentucky Derby Festival's annual Pegasus Parade and the archdiocesan bicentennial will be recognized.

- June 6-8, 2008: Traveling Concert: "Celebrate the Sacred Song: Two Hundred Years of Singing Praise to the Lord."
  - Friday, June 6, 2008, 7 p.m., St. Augustine, Lebanon
  - Saturday, June 7, 2008, 7:30 p.m., Cathedral of the Assumption, Louisville
  - Sunday, June 8, 2008, 2 p.m., Basilica of St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral, Bardstown

- June 29, 2008: Archdiocesan-wide liturgy, concert, and celebration will take place beginning at 2:30 p.m. at Slugger Field in Louisville, Kentucky. The concert will feature local musician Patrick Hughes, local band The Monarchs, and the group America.

- Sunday, September 28, 2008: 11:30 a.m. outdoor Mass on the grounds of the Basilica of St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral, presided by Most Reverend Edwin F. O'Brien, Archbishop of Baltimore.

- April 8, 2009: 7:00 p.m. Vespers Service, presided by Archbishop Joseph E. Kurtz, to close the bicentennial year with the burial of a time capsule on the grounds of the Basilica of St. Joseph Proto-Cathedral in Bardstown.

- A bicentennial prayer card has been distributed to parishes.

- The production and distribution of matching liturgical vestments for all archdiocesan priests was completed and used by the concelebrating bishops at Archbishop Kurtz's installation.

Other:

- Bicentennial radio spots aired in January and April of 2008.
- A "Bicentennial Trivia Quiz" was developed for parish trivia contests and quick recall teams have been created.
- Parishes have received a bulletin blurb on the bicentennial to use each week.
- The Record will run a series of articles and special sections in 2008.

Archdiocese of New York City

Bicentennial

1808-2008

FROM THE START

For 200 Years, the Church of New York's history has been an immigrant story

By Msgr. Thomas J. Shelley

On November 24, 1815, the good ship Sally sailed into New York harbor after a voyage of 67 days from Dublin. The trip had taken so long that there were rumors in New York that the vessel had been lost at sea. One of the passengers was an elderly Irishman who had caught a bad cold during the late autumn crossing of the North Atlantic. The Shamrock, the Irish newspaper in New York, misspelled his name as John Connoly, but it identified his occupation correctly. He was the newly appointed Roman Catholic Bishop of New York.

Devotion—Among Manhattan's outstanding churches is St. Vincent Ferrer on Lexington Avenue between 65th and 66th Streets, a splendid example of French Gothic architecture designed by the noted architect Bertrand Grosvenor Goodhue and dedicated in 1918. The parish was founded by the Dominican Fathers, who still administer it, and behind the altar is a magnificent painting of Dominican saints. Lighting softly illuminates the church during celebration of Mass, above.

November 24, 1815, is not a red letter day in the history of the Archdiocese of New York, but perhaps it should be because it was the first time that the fledgling diocese had a resident bishop. Bishop Connolly discovered that he was the spiritual leader of a community of some 12,000 souls in New York City and an unknown number of Catholics scattered across New York state and the northern half of New Jersey, an area of 55,000 square miles. A year later he wrote: "My daily burdens are truly greater than my strength, owing to my not having more than three priests to help me in this city."

Today this same area comprises two archdioceses, nine dioceses, 2,000 churches, 6,000 priests and more than 10 million Catholics. Not even the wildest optimist could have envisioned such a development 200 years ago. To understand how it happened requires a look back as well as a look ahead.

Colonial New York

During the colonial period there was only a faint and intermittent Catholic presence in New York. Nothing suggested that Catholics would ever find a welcome in this part of North America. The earliest Catholic presence dates from 1642 when Jesuit missionaries from French Canada attempted to evangelize the Iroquois Confederacy in upstate New York. Three of the missionaries died as martyrs, René Goupil in 1642, and Isaac Jogues and Jean de Lalande in 1646. Isaac Jogues was a priest and the other two were lay volunteers. They were canonized with the other North American martyrs in 1930.

Despite their heroic efforts, however, the French missionaries made few converts among the Iroquois. A notable exception was Kateri Tekakwitha, who was born in 1656 in present-day Auriesville, the site of the martyrdom of the three French missionaries. She was baptized on Easter Sunday in 1676, died in Canada four years later and was beatified in 1980.

The first priest to set foot in New York City was Isaac Jogues. After his initial escape from Iroquois captivity with the help of the Dutch in 1643, he spent a month in the little settlement when it was still New Amsterdam. Although the population numbered fewer than 500, Jogues reported that it was already a cosmopolitan center where 18 languages were spoken. However, he found only two Catholics, an Irishman and a Portuguese woman.

Neither the Dutch nor the English colonial authorities tolerated the practice of Catholicism. A brief exception occurred after 1674 when the colony came under the control of the Duke of York, a convert to Catholicism, who ascended the English throne as James II in 1685.

Thomas Dongan, an Irish Catholic, was governor from 1683 to 1688, and directed the colonial assembly to issue a Charter of Liberties and Privileges, giving religious toleration to all Christians. Dongan also brought three English Jesuits to New York. The first to arrive, Father Thomas Harvey, celebrated the first Mass in New York City one Sunday in 1683.

This short interlude of religious toleration came to an abrupt end with the Revolution of 1688 in England that toppled James II from the throne. Catholicism was again proscribed in New York. In 1696 the mayor of New York City announced that there were only 10 Catholics in the city. In 1700 an anti-priest law outlawed the presence of Catholic priests under penalty of life imprisonment. Meanwhile in upstate New York the French Jesuits abandoned their missions among the Iroquois in 1709. Thereafter Catholic life in the colony became virtually extinct until the American Revolution.

The Revolution and the Republic

At the end of the American Revolution there was a Catholic community of about 200 people in New York City, who were now free to practice their religion for the first time in a century. On June 10, 1785, the lay leaders formed "The Roman Catholic Church in the City of New York." They rented several lots from Trinity Episcopal Church and erected St. Peter's Church on Barclay Street, a small brick building that was the first Catholic Church in New York. The cornerstone was blessed on Oct. 5, 1785, and the unfinished building was dedicated on Nov. 4, 1786.

It was easier to erect a church building than to find a suitable pastor. The first two pastors of St. Peter's Church were both Irish Capuchins, Charles Whelan and Andrew Nugent. They soon fought with one another and with the lay leaders who were the legal trustees of the church. Peace came to the parish only with the arrival in 1787 of William O'Brien, an Irish Dominican, who remained as pastor for the next 20 years. However, the issue of lay trusteeism, which centered around the respective roles of the clergy and laity in administering the parish, remained unresolved for the next 50 years, not only in New York, but in many other parishes across America as well.

One reason why the lay leaders assumed a dominant role in the parish was that they filled a vacuum in the absence of normal Church government in the United States. That situation began to change after 1789 when John Carroll was appointed the Bishop of Baltimore with jurisdiction over the whole American Church. For the next two decades St. Peter's was a parish in the diocese of Baltimore with John Carroll functioning as New York's first bishop from a distance of 200 miles. He was the first to recognize the awkwardness of the situation and was delighted when, on April 8, 1808, Pope Pius VII made Baltimore a metropolitan see and created new dioceses in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Bardstown, Kentucky.

A Diocese Without a Bishop

Since John Carroll had no one to recommend for New York, the Roman authorities selected the first bishop, Richard Luke Concanen, an Irish Dominican friar, who had lived in Rome for some 40 years. However, because of the naval war between France and England, the closest that Concanen ever got to his diocese was Naples, where he died on June 19, 1810, after a fruitless effort to book passage to New York. Cardinal O'Connor liked to quip that he was the smartest bishop of New York because he never came here.

Meanwhile, with Bishop Concanen's permission, Archbishop Carroll appointed a vicar general in New York, Anthony Kohlmann, an Alsatian Jesuit, who has a good claim to be regarded as the real founder of the diocese.

The Immigrant Church

When Bishop Connolly landed in New York in 1815, perhaps the biggest shock he experienced was the ethnic diversity of his flock. The Irish comprised the largest segment of the Catholic community, followed by the French (both from France and Haiti), Germans, African-Americans, and lesser numbers of Spanish, Portuguese, Italians, English and native-born Americans. It was a harbinger of things to come.

The year of Bishop Connolly's arrival marked the beginning of the largest recorded migration in history as millions of Europeans left their homeland in search of a better life in America. Many of them were Catholic and within a short time they were to transform the minuscule American Catholic community into the largest Christian church in the United States.

With good reason the Catholic Church in New York has been called "The Immigrant Church." The only variable has been the place of origin of the immigrants. The Irish and Germans predominated before the Civil War, followed by Italians and Eastern Europeans later in the century. The 20th century witnessed the arrival of large numbers of Hispanics from the Caribbean and Latin America, and more recently immigrants from Asia and Africa. Two hundred years ago Father Kohlmann preached on Sunday in English, German and French in St. Peter's Church. Today Mass is celebrated in the archdiocese on Sunday in 25 languages, including Akan, Arabic, Igbo, and Tagalog.

A Diocese Adrift

During the 30 years after 1808 the population of the diocese soared to about 200,000. Neither Bishop Connolly (1815-1825) nor his successor Bishop John Dubois (1826-1842) could cope with the demands of the rapidly growing diocese. Connolly was 68 years old when he was transplanted from Rome to America. Dubois had the handicap of his French birth for which the New York Irish never forgave him even though he placed a shamrock in his episcopal coat of arms as a peace offering.

America's First Bishop—As head of the Baltimore diocese, John Carroll was the only bishop in the United States in its early years. A member of a prominent Maryland family, his cousin, Charles Carroll, was the only Catholic to sign the Declaration of Independence.

On a 3,000-mile pastoral visitation of the diocese in 1829 that took him as far west as Buffalo and as far north as the Canadian border, Bishop Dubois repeatedly discovered more Catholics than he expected. "700 are found where I understood there were but 50 or 60," he wrote, "1,100 where I was told to look for 200." At the St. Regis Indian reservation a dozen young Native Americans served his Mass in surplices made from blankets while the choir sang Indian hymns that reminded him of Gregorian chant. When Alex de Tocqueville visited New York City in 1831, he was told by the vicar general, Father John Power, that the Catholics were already the single largest religious body even though they had only five churches compared to almost 100 Protestant churches.

In 1817 three Sisters of Charity came from their motherhouse in Emmitsburg, Md., to establish the first charitable institution in the diocese, the Catholic Orphan Asylum. Only a dozen years earlier Elizabeth Ann Seton, a native of New York City, had been received into the Catholic Church in St. Peter's Church and had founded her new religious community in 1809. She was canonized in 1975, the first native-born American saint.

Over the years one of the most faithful benefactors of the Catholic Orphan Asylum and many other charitable causes was Pierre Toussaint, a Haitian-born slave. Emancipated in 1807, he became a prosperous businessman and a pewholder of St. Peter's Church where he attended the 6 a.m. Mass every day for more than 60 years. At his death in 1853 he was one of the best known African-Americans in New York City. In 1997 he was declared Venerable, the first step in the process of canonization.

Bishop and Chief

In 1837 the 40-year-old John Hughes was appointed the coadjutor bishop to the aging John Dubois. Ordained a bishop the following year, John Hughes was made the administrator of the diocese in 1839. He succeeded Dubois as the fourth bishop of New York in 1842, became the first archbishop of New York in 1850 and died on January 4, 1864. To use his own words, for a quarter-century he ruled the Church in New York as "bishop and chief."

Surveying the condition of the diocese, he confided to a friend, "I think that I have been sent here in punishment for my sins." John Hughes opened 61 new churches within the confines of the present archdiocese (at one point a new church every 10 weeks) and brought 10 new religious communities to the diocese, who in turn made possible a vast expansion of Catholic educational and charitable activities.

Geographically the diocese shrank to approximately one-tenth of its original size with the creation of new dioceses in Buffalo and Albany in 1847, and Brooklyn and Newark in 1853. Nonetheless, in the area that remained under the jurisdiction of John Hughes, the Catholic population almost doubled from 200,000 to over 350,000. By 1865 one out of every four New Yorkers was born in Ireland, and one of every six New Yorkers was born in Germany.

John Hughes was the first archbishop of New York to become a national figure. Within five years, he was the best-known, if not necessarily the best-loved Catholic prelate in the United States as a result of three well-publicized controversies. First he successfully challenged the lay trustees for control of the cathedral by appealing over their head to the pewholders who had elected them. Secondly he single-handedly destroyed the Public School Society, an elitist private organization that enjoyed a monopoly on public education in New York City. It was less than a total victory, however, since it eventually led to the secularization of the public schools.

His finest hour occurred in May 1844. A Nativist mob that had precipitated three days of anti-Catholic riots in Philadelphia threatened to repeat the performance in New York. Hughes placed armed guards around his churches and warned the mayor that "New York would become a second Moscow" if the city fathers did not maintain law and order. It was a reference to the deliberate destruction of that city by the Russians 30 years earlier. The combination of firmness and bluster had the desired effect. The Nativists called off their demonstration and New York City was spared the mob violence that had racked Philadelphia.

John Hughes was a highly controversial figure in his own day and he remains so today. His autocratic style and belligerence have drawn criticism from many quarters, but Msgr. John Tracy Ellis, the respected historian of American Catholicism, offered a more favorable judgment. While conceding that Hughes "was not what one could call a likable character," Ellis pointed out that "there were times when his very aggressiveness was about the only approach that would serve the end he was seeking, justice for his people."

John Hughes' greatest monument is St. Patrick's Cathedral. He laid the cornerstone on August 15, 1858, but did not live to see it completed. It was meant to be a statement in stone of the presence of the Immigrant Church in the city that was the capital of Protestant America. "We propose," he said, "to erect a cathedral in the city of New York that may be worthy of our increasing numbers, intelligence, and wealth as a religious community." St. Patrick's Cathedral remains today as a tribute to the determination and foresight of New York's greatest Catholic leader.

The Gilded Age

Neither of John Hughes' two immediate successors, John Cardinal McCloskey (1864-1885) and Archbishop Michael Augustine Corrigan (1885-1902), possessed his vision or feisty personality, but they inherited the secure place that Hughes had carved out for Catholics in New York. They were also the beneficiaries of the demographic changes that saw the Catholic population triple to 1,200,000. By 1880 New York was a predominantly Catholic city that elected three Catholic mayors during the next two decades.

In 1875, when John McCloskey became the first American cardinal, it was a recognition of the importance that the Archdiocese of New York had now assumed in the Catholic world. The changes that took place during McCloskey's own lifetime were breathtaking. Born in Brooklyn in 1810, when the Catholic population of the whole state was little more than 15,000, he left behind at his death in 1885 an archdiocese of 600,000 Catholics.

The growth was especially spectacular under Archbishop Corrigan, who founded 99 new parishes in 17 years, a record unmatched by any other archbishop of New York. In a pastoral letter that he issued in 1900, Archbishop Corrigan said that during the previous decade, he had dedicated a new church, school, rectory, convent, or institution every two weeks, a total of over 250 buildings.

The growth of the religious communities was equally impressive. By 1900 there were 20 communities of men and 32 communities of women at work in the diocese. The largest was the Sisters of Charity whose numbers grew from 33 sisters in 1846 to 1,145 professed sisters in 1900. By that date they staffed 77 schools and institutions, including the New York Foundling Hospital. It has been said that the real founder of the parochial school system in New York was not John Hughes, but Mother Jerome Ely, the longtime mother general of the Sisters of Charity. She probably had more authority and more responsibility than any other woman in New York in her day.

The increasing wealth of the Catholic community in the late 19th and early 20th centuries was evident in the erection of such impressive churches as St. Francis Xavier, St. Paul the Apostle, St. Ignatius Loyola, St. Jean Baptiste, and especially St. Vincent Ferrer. However, as the church historian Henry Browne observed dryly, the Catholics did not live in churches. Most were poor people who lived in the cold-water flats of tenement houses. Their own poverty made their generosity to the Church all the more admirable.

A visitor to the 6 a.m. Sunday Mass at St. Stephen's Church in 1866 noticed that no one put more than a penny in the collection basket, but every single person contributed a penny, no matter how poor they might have been.

In the 1880s, when Edward McGlynn, the pastor of St. Stephen's Church, added a noon Mass on Sunday, he told Archbishop Corrigan, "Churches are for the people, and not people for the churches." He explained that even Sunday was not a full day of rest for many of his parishioners. "Very many have to work all night or from three or four o'clock in the mornings of Sundays as well as other days."

Dr. McGlynn (as he was invariably called in deference to his Roman doctorate) became the most famous or notorious priest in New York, and was excommunicated for five years, because of his involvement in local politics. For some, like Tammany chieftain Richard Croker, McGlynn was a populist demagogue. For others, he was a rare Catholic champion of the Social Gospel in the heyday of laissez-faire capitalism.

On Top of the World

The first half of the 20th century was the Golden Age of urban Catholicism in the large cities of the Midwest and Northeast. Pastors boasted about the size of their parish plant, by which they meant a church, school, rectory, convent, and sometimes a parish hall, which anchored a whole neighborhood and was a social as well as a religious center. To borrow Charles Morris' comment about contemporary Philadelphia, an alien anthropologist from outer space who landed in a working-class neighborhood in New York "would know instantly the centrality of religion to the lives of the inhabitants." In New York this era coincided with the episcopates of John Cardinal Farley (1902 -1918), the last Irish-born archbishop of New York, and Patrick Cardinal Hayes (1919-1938), who was born on the Lower East Side, not far from the birthplace of Al Smith.

When the diocese celebrated its centenary in 1908, one highlight was a march of 40,000 men up Fifth Avenue to the cathedral. It was a calculated demonstration of Catholic power, which peaked in those years when the Cardinal's Residence at 452 Madison Avenue was familiarly known as the Powerhouse. When George McClellan Jr. was elected mayor, he called at the Powerhouse to ask Archbishop Farley if he had any recommendations for city commissioners. The archbishop's response surprised him. Farley said that he would prefer fair-minded Protestants to Catholics who would bend over backwards to avoid the impression that they were favoring their own church.

Above, Alfred E. Smith, governor of New York and, in 1928, the first Catholic candidate for president. Though he lost the election, his down-to-earth manner and his concern for the needs of the poor and working people made him a beloved figure in his time and an enduring symbol of the highest values in public service. Chris Sheridan (St. Vincent Ferrer); Courtesy of Alfred E. Smith Memorial Foundation.

The centenary celebration was also the high-water mark of Irish domination of the archdiocese, which had already begun to wane. By that date over one-third of the 136 parishes in New York City were national parishes, representing eleven different ethnic groups. The most notable demographic change was the influx of some 300,000 Italian immigrants during the previous three decades. Not since the Great Famine in Ireland had so many Catholics from one country come to the archdiocese in such a short period of time.

The most famous of the Italian immigrants was Mother Frances Xavier Cabrini, who arrived in New York City in 1889 with her Missionary Sisters of the Sacred Heart. She died in Chicago in 1917 and was canonized in 1946, the first American citizen to be declared a saint. Four years later Pope Pius XII conferred on her the title of Patroness of Immigrants. In the early 20th century the growth rate of the Catholic population was only half of what it had been during the previous half-century. Most of it took place in the Bronx, southern Westchester, and Staten Island. The reason was not the lack of newcomers, but the exodus of Catholics from Manhattan. As far back as 1896 the pastor of St. Peter's Church complained that "Brooklyn and [New] Jersey have taken away our industrious middle class." In the later 1930s New York ceased to be the largest archdiocese in the nation, overtaken first by Chicago and then by Boston.

Nevertheless, New York remained a vital center of American Catholic life. The publication of the Catholic Encyclopedia and the founding of Maryknoll in 1911 were both milestones of different kinds in the coming of age of American Catholicism. The most famous chaplain in World War I was Father Francis P. Duffy of the New York 69th National Guard Regiment. Two of the most influential Catholic magazines originated in New York, the Jesuit weekly America, founded by Father John J. Wynne, S.J., in 1909, and the lay-sponsored Commonweal, which dates from 1924. In 1919 Msgr. Robert F. Keegan began the organization of Catholic Charities, which became a model for many other dioceses.

In 1928, when a Catholic was first nominated for President of the United States, it was a New York Catholic, Governor Alfred E. Smith. Although Al Smith was often identified exclusively with the Irish, he was a classic example of the inclusiveness of the Immigrant Church of New York. His grandparents were German, Italian, Irish and English.

In 1933, in the depths of the Depression, Dorothy Day and Peter Maurin founded the Catholic Worker movement in New York City. In 2005 Cardinal Egan took the first steps to introduce the cause of her canonization in Rome. In 1934 Father John LaFarge, S.J., and George K. Hunton formed the Catholic Interracial Council of New York. Four years later Catherine de Hueck Doherty opened Friendship House in Harlem. Two of the most effective communicators of the Gospel had a New York connection, if not New York roots. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen was the Lenten preacher at St. Patrick's Cathedral every year from 1930 to 1952, while Thomas Merton was baptized in Corpus Christi Church on November 16, 1938.

A Church and Society in Flux

The last of the brick-and-mortar archbishops of New York was Francis Cardinal Spellman (1939-1967). The friend of both Pope Pius XII and President Franklin D. Roosevelt, he was the most prominent archbishop of New York since John Hughes and the most influential American Catholic churchman since Cardinal Gibbons. As the Military Vicar for the Armed Forces, Spellman headed a second diocese of several million Catholics and became a reassuring symbol of Catholic patriotism to many Americans during World War II.

After World War II, Spellman embarked upon a major diocesan building program that took 24 pages to describe in a press release by the New York chancery office for his silver jubilee as archbishop in 1964. In 1965 there were 362,025 students in the Catholic schools of the Archdiocese of New York and the Diocese of Brooklyn. According to Msgr. George A. Kelly, only two public school systems in the nation, New York City and Chicago, had larger enrollments.

In addition to his ability as a builder and fundraiser, Spellman also showed imagination and resourcefulness in responding to the pastoral needs of several hundred thousand Puerto Ricans who came to the archdiocese in the first airborne migration in history. One of his proudest moments occurred on October 4, 1965, when he welcomed Pope Paul VI on his whirlwind visit to the United Nations and New York City.

However, Spellman's last years were overshadowed by changes in the church and country that he neither welcomed nor understood. Although he was responsible for bringing Father John Courtney Murray to the Second Vatican Council and strongly supported the Declaration on Religious Liberty, he resisted many of the changes of the Council, especially the introduction of the vernacular liturgy. He remained a staunch supporter of the Vietnam War to his death, disappointed that his appeals to American patriotism did not bring the same positive response that they did during World War II.

We Have Been Here Before

A major challenge for the post-conciliar Church in the United States was the implementation of the reforms of the Council in an increasingly secularized society, a development symbolized most alarmingly perhaps by the Roe v. Wade decision of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1973. In New York the impact of secularization was especially severe at the same time that the archdiocese was called upon to meet increasing pastoral demands with diminished resources of priests and religious. That has been the common experience of the last three archbishops of New York: Terence Cardinal Cooke (1968-1983), John Cardinal O'Connor (1984-2000), and Edward Cardinal Egan (2000-present).

In the 40 years since the close of Vatican Council II, the Catholic Church in New York preserved its claim to the title of the Immigrant Church. The number of Catholics increased from 1,800,000 to over 2,500,000 due largely to immigration from Latin America and to a lesser extent from Asia and Africa. At the same time the number of active diocesan priests that Cardinal Egan had at his disposal in 2007 was little more than the number that were available to Archbishop Corrigan over a century ago for a Catholic population of half the size.

There were other equally disquieting statistics that could be cited on the occasion of the bicentennial of the diocese. However, one of the benefits, if not the purpose of Church history, is to place statistics, whether of the good or bad variety, in historical perspective. Writing in the late 1960s, when the American Catholic Church was in turmoil, Msgr. John Tracy Ellis said that, next to the grace of God, he found the greatest source of reassurance in his knowledge of Church history. It reminded him that the Church had surmounted far worse crises in the past. Another Church historian, David Knowles, put it more simply. "We have been here before," he said.

Even a cursory knowledge of the history of the Archdiocese of New York should provide similar reassurance today. One need only think of Bishop John Connolly arriving in New York harbor on the Sally in 1815 to find a raw frontier diocese half the size of Italy with three churches and six priests. It is doubtful if any bishop in the history of the Catholic Church in the United States ever began his Episcopal career under more disheartening circumstances.

One need not go back 200 years in New York Catholic history to find reassurance for the future. Thirty years ago a New York priest was appointed the pastor of a parish in the South Bronx during the worst period of that area's ordeal by fire. He said that the neighborhood resembled Dresden after the firebombing of World War II. "There were gutted buildings on every street and sheet metal boarding up the windows with painted flowerpots on them. It was like living in a movie set."

"It is a place that should have died," he concluded, "but it didn't. There is no explanation for it," he added, "except the immense love and creativity of so many people and the grace of God." Despite many difficulties past and present, those same two factors—the love and creativity of so many people and the grace of God—have brought the Archdiocese of New York to the present moment. It is a good omen for the future.

Msgr. Thomas Shelley is a priest of the archdiocese and professor of historical theology at Fordham University. He is the author of the forthcoming "Bicentennial History of the Archdiocese of New York."

Archdiocese of Philadelphia Bicentennial 1808-2008

Serving the people of God in the beginning, now and always

PHILADELPHIA — The past 365 days have, indeed, marked "a time of jubilee for the Church of Philadelphia."

Sept. 29,2007 — more than 3,500 Catholics gather at the "Amazing Race for Grace," an event culminating in an outdoor Mass. (photo courtesy Sarah Webb and CNS)

As of April 8, 2008, Philadelphia as a diocese has existed for two centuries.

Last April, before Cardinal Justin Rigali signed the official proclamation beginning the year-long commemoration, he underscored two priorities for the Bicentennial celebration: prayers for an increase of priestly vocations and a recommitment by Catholics in the Archdiocese to service in God's name.

"This is an important event, as we prepare to enter a joyful year — a time of jubilee for the Church of Philadelphia," Cardinal Rigali said on April 2, 2007, at a press conference at the Archdiocesan Office Center in Center City.

At that time, the Cardinal also challenged every parish, Catholic school and Catholic institution to perform a service project between the January 5 feast of St. John Neumann and the March 3 feast of St. Katharine Drexel. Both are canonized saints in the Philadelphia Archdiocese who were renowned for their charitable service to others, in keeping with the bicentennial theme, "Serving the People of God in the Beginning, Now and Always."

April, 2007 — Cardinal Justin Rigali signs the official proclamation initiating the year-long anniversary commemoration. (photo courtesy Sarah Webb and CNS)

The Cardinal appointed Auxiliary Bishop Robert P. Maginnis and Father Joseph C. McLoone to oversee the bicentennial celebrations. Bishop Maginnis has been the episcopal liaison and Father McLoone, pastor of St. Katharine Drexel Parish in Chester, has been the chairman.

At the 2007 press conference, the Cardinal also acknowledged the winner of the official bicentennial logo contest — Dan Cellucci, communications director of the Catholic Leadership Institute in Exton and a member of St. Thomas of Villanova Parish in Rosemont.

Plans are in place for the closing liturgy of the archdiocesan bicentennial, which Cardinal Rigali will celebrate at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 13 at the Villanova University Pavilion in Villanova. The procession begins at 3:40 p.m. Those planning to attend are asked to be in their seats by 3:30 p.m.

The role of the family will be highlighted at the Mass, which will be broadcast by live streaming video at: www.archphila.org.

The ethnic diversity of the Archdiocese will be evident throughout the Mass, beginning with a procession that includes colorful banners representing the countries of origin of the thousands of immigrant Catholics of the Archdiocese.

After the liturgy — in true Philadelphia fashion — Tastykakes and soft pretzels will be distributed as Catholics strut home to the sounds of a local string band.

Oct. 10, 2007 — The archdiocesan Bicentennial Concert takes place at the Kimmel Center for the Performing Arts in Philadelphia, showcasing the talents of more than 400 musicians from Catholic elementary and secondary schools. (photo courtesy Sarah Webb and CNS)

The year 1808 was a pivotal time for the Church in America. On April 8 that year, Pope Pius VII established Baltimore as the first Archdiocese in the United States, and created dioceses Philadelphia, Boston, New York and Bardstown, Ky.

At the time, the Diocese of Philadelphia included the entire area of Pennsylvania, Delaware and the southern half of New Jersey. Eleven dioceses now serve that area. In Pennsylvania, there are now eight dioceses.

Whereas, The House of Representatives of Pennsylvania takes great pleasure in recognizing those institutions which contribute to the benefit of their communities and ultimately to all the citizens of this Commonwealth; and

Whereas, The Archdiocese of Philadelphia is being congratulated upon the momentous occasion of its two hundredth anniversary; and

Whereas, Established on April 8, 1808, by Pope Pius VII, the Archdiocese of Philadelphia currently consists of one and half million Catholics. Presently following the spiritual guidance of Cardinal Justin Rigali, Archbishop of Philadelphia, the archdiocese operates two hundred seventy parishes, one hundred eighty-four parish elementary schools, twenty archdiocesan high schools and five schools of special education. Throughout its laudable history, the Archdiocese of Philadelphia has made inestimable contributions to the welfare of society through a sense of fellowship and through its programs, which are designed to enhance the quality of life for all. A succession of dedicated leaders and members have made this possible for two hundred years, keeping ever mindful of the noble maxims of the organization.

Now therefore, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania salutes the Archdiocese of Philadelphia as it recommits itself to the ideals and standards which have sustained it for two hundred years; offers best wishes for continued growth and success in the years to come;

And directs that a copy of this citation, sponsored by the Honorable George T. Kenney, Jr., on March 31, 2008, be transmitted to the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, 222 North Seventeenth Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19103.

Pope Benedict Visits the United States

By John Thavis

He came. He spoke. He conquered doubts.

On his first visit to the United States, Pope Benedict XVI left an overwhelmingly positive impression, stimulating reflection on a variety of moral and spiritual issues, but without coming off as doctrinaire.

He revealed himself as a friend of the country and its democratic traditions -- but a concerned friend, one who fears the impact of a "new secularism" and the loss of the religious voice in public affairs.

To his sometimes fractured flock, the pope challenged U.S. Catholics to end their divisions and "set aside all anger" in order to evangelize society effectively.

And on an issue that has shaken the church for six years, clerical sex abuse, he brought sharp judgment and words of healing. To many, his personal meeting with sex abuse victims brought a long-awaited sense of closure.

The April 15-20 visit to Washington and New York had as its theme "Christ Our Hope," and included ballpark liturgies, a speech to the United Nations and meetings with youths, priests, bishops and non-Catholic representatives.

As it unfolded, Pope Benedict defined himself to a public that barely knew him. Instead of the doctrinal overseer many expected, they found a thoughtful and thought-provoking preacher of the Gospel, a man who invites rather than commands.

The pope's first official encounter came at the White House April 16, the day he turned 81. President George W. Bush and some 9,000 well-wishers serenaded the pontiff with an impromptu "Happy Birthday" on the South Lawn.

A fife and drum corps played "Yankee Doodle," flags waved in the sunshine, and the pope and president traded tributes. When Pope Benedict finished his speech with the words, "God bless America!", the president leaped to his feet and told the pontiff: "Thank you, Your Holiness. Awesome speech."

The pope's talk set the tone for his visit. He said he had come to the United States "as a friend ... and one with great respect for this vast pluralistic society."

Religious values helped forge "the soul of the nation" and should continue to inspire Americans as they face complex political and ethical issues today, he said. In today's world, he said, that means defending human rights and reaching out with solidarity to the needy.

Pope Benedict picked up on those themes that evening, when he addressed the country's bishops at the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. He arrived in his popemobile, smiling and waving to enthusiastic crowds that lined the adjacent streets and the front of the basilica.

Inside, more than 300 bishops stood and applauded the pope as he entered the crypt church, whose arches and columns recall the catacombs in Rome where the first Christians worshipped.

The pope praised Americans for having "a genuinely religious spirit," but said modern secularism and materialism can subtly influence the way people live out their faith.

He warned that a sense of individualism can lead Catholics to think they can pick and choose what they believe, and he added pointedly: "We've seen this emerge in an acute way in the scandal given by Catholics who promote an alleged right to abortion."

On April 17, the pope celebrated a morning Mass in Washington's Nationals Park, where a crowd of 45,000 cheered his entry and followed the multi-ethnic liturgy.

From an altar in deep center field, the pope invoked a new chapter of the descent of the Holy Spirit at Pentecost and urged U.S. Catholics to give their contemporaries "a convincing account of the hope which inspires them."

"The world needs this witness. Who can deny that the present moment is a crossroads, not only for the church in America but also for society as a whole?" he said.

He spoke of "clear signs of a disturbing breakdown in the very foundations of society: signs of alienation, anger, and polarization on the part of many of our contemporaries; increased violence; a weakening of the moral sense; a coarsening of social relations; and a growing forgetfulness of God."

The homily was perhaps the most challenging talk of the trip, and the pope ended it by echoing the theme of his visit, asking all Catholics to bear witness to the hope that sustains them.

That evening, Pope Benedict addressed more than 400 Catholic college presidents and diocesan education representatives at the Catholic University of America. For weeks, many had speculated that the pope, a respected theologian and academic, might have harsh words of reprimand for university leaders. Instead he spoke warmly to the group, expressing his deep gratitude for their "selfless contributions" and dedication.

The pope did touch on a sensitive issue: academic freedom. On the one hand, such freedom is a great value, he said. But he said Catholic institutions betray their identity and mission when they appeal to academic freedom "to justify positions that contradict the faith and teaching of the church."

Afterward, the pope rode over to the nearby Pope John Paul II Cultural Center, where he spoke with 200 representatives of Islam, Jainism, Buddhism, Hinduism, and Judaism. He told the assembly that while interreligious cooperation in peace and social efforts is important, dialogue between religions should aim at something more. "The broader purpose of dialogue is to discover truth," he said.

The pope's stay in Washington included one unscheduled event, and it was arguably the most emotional encounter of the trip. On April 17, he met privately with five victims of priestly sexual abuse, praying with them in a chapel of his residence and listening to their stories. The group was accompanied by Cardinal Sean P. O'Malley of Boston, the archdiocese that was the epicenter of the abuse scandal.

Faith Johnston, 23, who as a young teen was abused over several months by a Colombian priest at her parish's rectory, said she clutched her mother's rosary beads during the meeting and was "praying for the strength to say the right thing."

Johnston added, "I didn't end up saying anything (to Pope Benedict). I got up to him and I burst into tears. But honestly, I don't think any words I could have said ... my tears alone -- it just spoke so much."

The pope had addressed the sex abuse issue even on the plane carrying him from Rome to Washington, telling reporters that when he read the case histories of victims, he could not believe "that priests betrayed in this way their mission to give healing, to give the love of God to these children."

"We are deeply ashamed and will do all possible that this cannot happen in the future," he said. He lauded the U.S. bishops' efforts to protect children and bring justice, and said seminaries would be doing more careful screening.

The pope spoke on several other occasions about the sex abuse sandal, encouraging bishops to "bind up the wounds" and telling Catholic faithful at the Washington Mass: "No words of mine could describe the pain and harm inflicted by such abuse. It is important that those who have suffered be given loving pastoral attention."

April 18 took the pope to New York and the United Nations. In a major address to the General Assembly, he made the point that neither government nor religion has a right to limit human rights, because those rights flow from the dignity of each person created in God's image.

It was a speech aimed in part at countries where minority Catholic populations live under strict Islamic law.

During his three-hour visit, the pope stopped briefly before the war-scarred U.N. flag that had flown outside the U.N. headquarters in Baghdad, Iraq, in 2003. He wrote in Latin in a visitor's book, "Erit opus iustitiae pax," words from the Book of Isaiah which mean "Justice will bring about peace."

That evening, the pope paid a simple, moving visit at the Park East Synagogue on Manhattan's Upper East Side. The encounter marked the first time a pope has visited a Jewish place of worship in the United States, and it came a day before the start of the Jewish Passover.

Addressing the delegation of Jewish representatives as "dear friends," the pope alluded to Christianity's Jewish roots when he said, "I find it moving to recall that Jesus, as a young boy, heard the words of Scripture and prayed in a place such as this."

From there, the pope's motorcade drove up to the Church of St. Joseph for an ecumenical prayer service with about 250 representatives of U.S. ecumenical organizations and a dozen Christian churches and denominations.

In a brief but forceful talk, the pope said the witness of Christians in the world is weakened not only by their divisions, but also by some communities turning their backs on Christian tradition.

He said it was unfortunate that some church communities have given up "the attempt to act as a unified body, choosing instead to function according to the idea of 'local options.'"

He gave no examples, but his words appeared to reflect his concern over Christian communities that have decided to ordain women to the priesthood and episcopacy or to bless homosexual unions and ordain openly gay men and women.

On April 19, celebrating Mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Pope Benedict urged the Catholic Church in the United States to move past divisions and scandal toward a "new sense of unity and purpose." He once again addressed the damage and suffering caused by the clerical sex abuse scandal and called for a time of purification and healing.

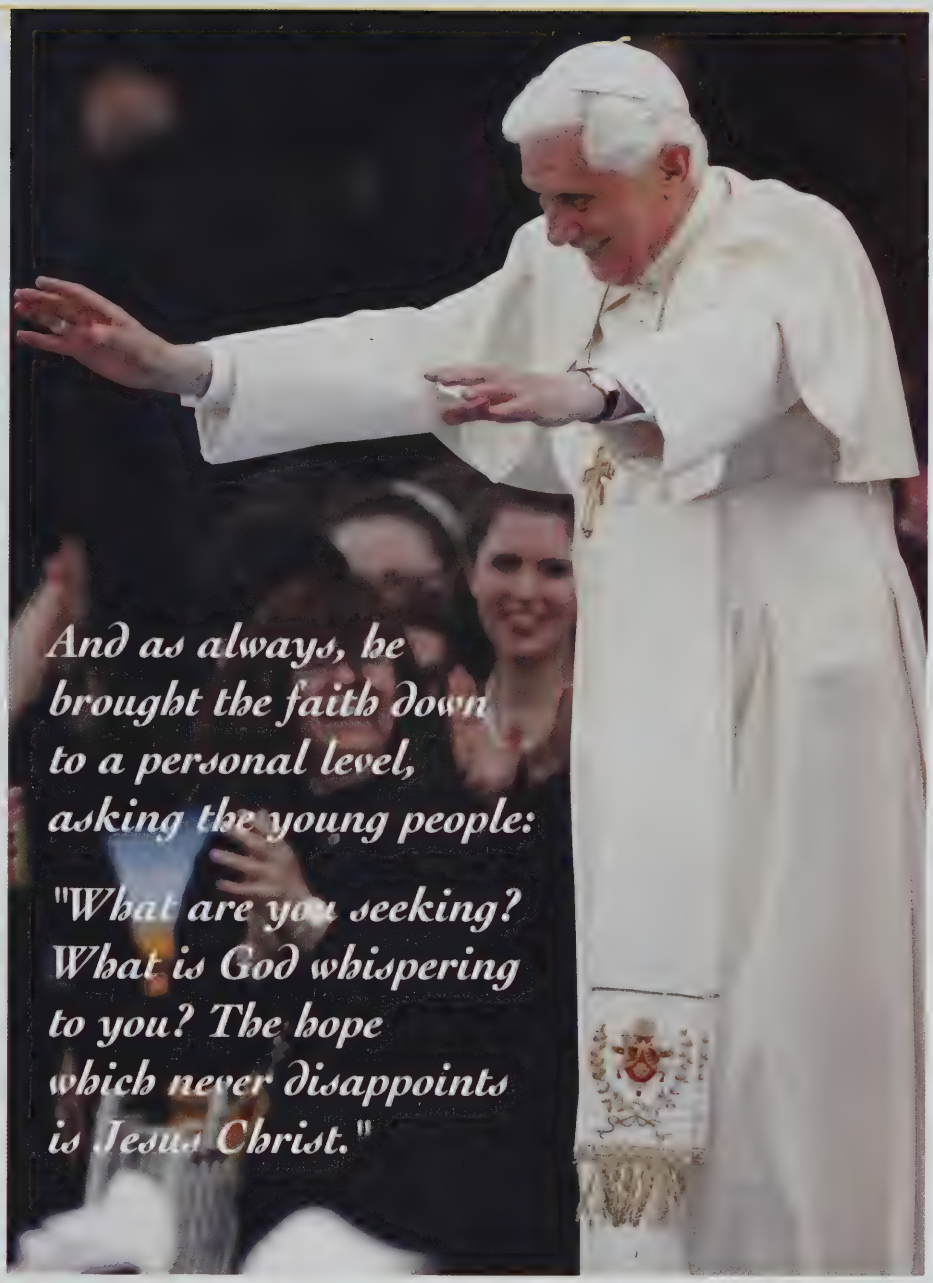
More generally, he said it was time to "put aside all anger and contention" inside the church and embark on a fresh mission of evangelization in society. One of the greatest disappointments over the last 40 years, he said, has been the experience of division between different groups inside the church.

The pope was celebrating the third anniversary of his election, and he received congratulations from New York Cardinal Edward M. Egan and an ovation from the 3,000 people who packed the cathedral. Many of them held aloft cameras or even stood on pews for a glimpse of the pontiff.

That afternoon, the pope traveled to the Archdiocese of New York's seminary at Yonkers for a rally with 25,000 young people and seminarians. The event featured music, prayers and a lot of smiles, as the pope waded into the crowd briefly to greet the youths.

As usual, he gave his audience something to think about, telling them that while young people today enjoy democracy's freedom, "the power to destroy does, however, remain."

He recalled his own experience as a young boy in Germany, when the "monster" of Nazism gave rise to a sinister regime that "banished God and thus became impervious to anything true and good."



And as always, he brought the faith down to a personal level, asking the young people: "What are you seeking? What is God whispering to you? The hope which never disappoints is Jesus Christ."

www.luismolinaacedo-sa.es

Inside the seminary, the pope took time to meet with 56 disabled youths and their caregivers. He greeted the youngsters one by one, laying a hand on their heads, grasping their hands or tracing a blessing on their foreheads.

The pope's final day in the United States opened with a somber visit to ground zero in lower Manhattan, where he prayed for the victims of the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks. At the bottom of the 70-foot-deep crater where the World Trade Center towers once stood, he spoke quietly with survivors and relatives of victims who died in the attacks.

Yankee Stadium was transformed into an open-air church for the final Mass on Sunday afternoon, with an altar at second base and the stands filled to capacity with 57,000 Catholics from major East Coast dioceses. They welcomed the pope by waving gold and white handkerchiefs and cheering "Benedetto" ("Benedict" in Italian).

The liturgy celebrated the 200th anniversaries of the archdioceses of New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Louisville, Ky., and of the elevation of Baltimore to an archdiocese.

In his sermon, the pope asked U.S. Catholics to build on the "impressive legacy" left by the country's early church community. In particular, he told them that freedom was a gift to be used wisely in order to "build a future of hope for coming generations." The crowd applauded loudly when the pope defended the rights of the "unborn child in the mother's womb." And they chanted "We love you!" as the pope walked off the field at the end of the Mass and ducked into the dugout, his miter just clearing the ceiling.

A few hours later, the mosaic of encounters and liturgies completed, the pope said goodbye and his plane took off from JFK Airport for Rome. His five-day visit was over, but for all Americans the pope left behind an important gift: food for thought.

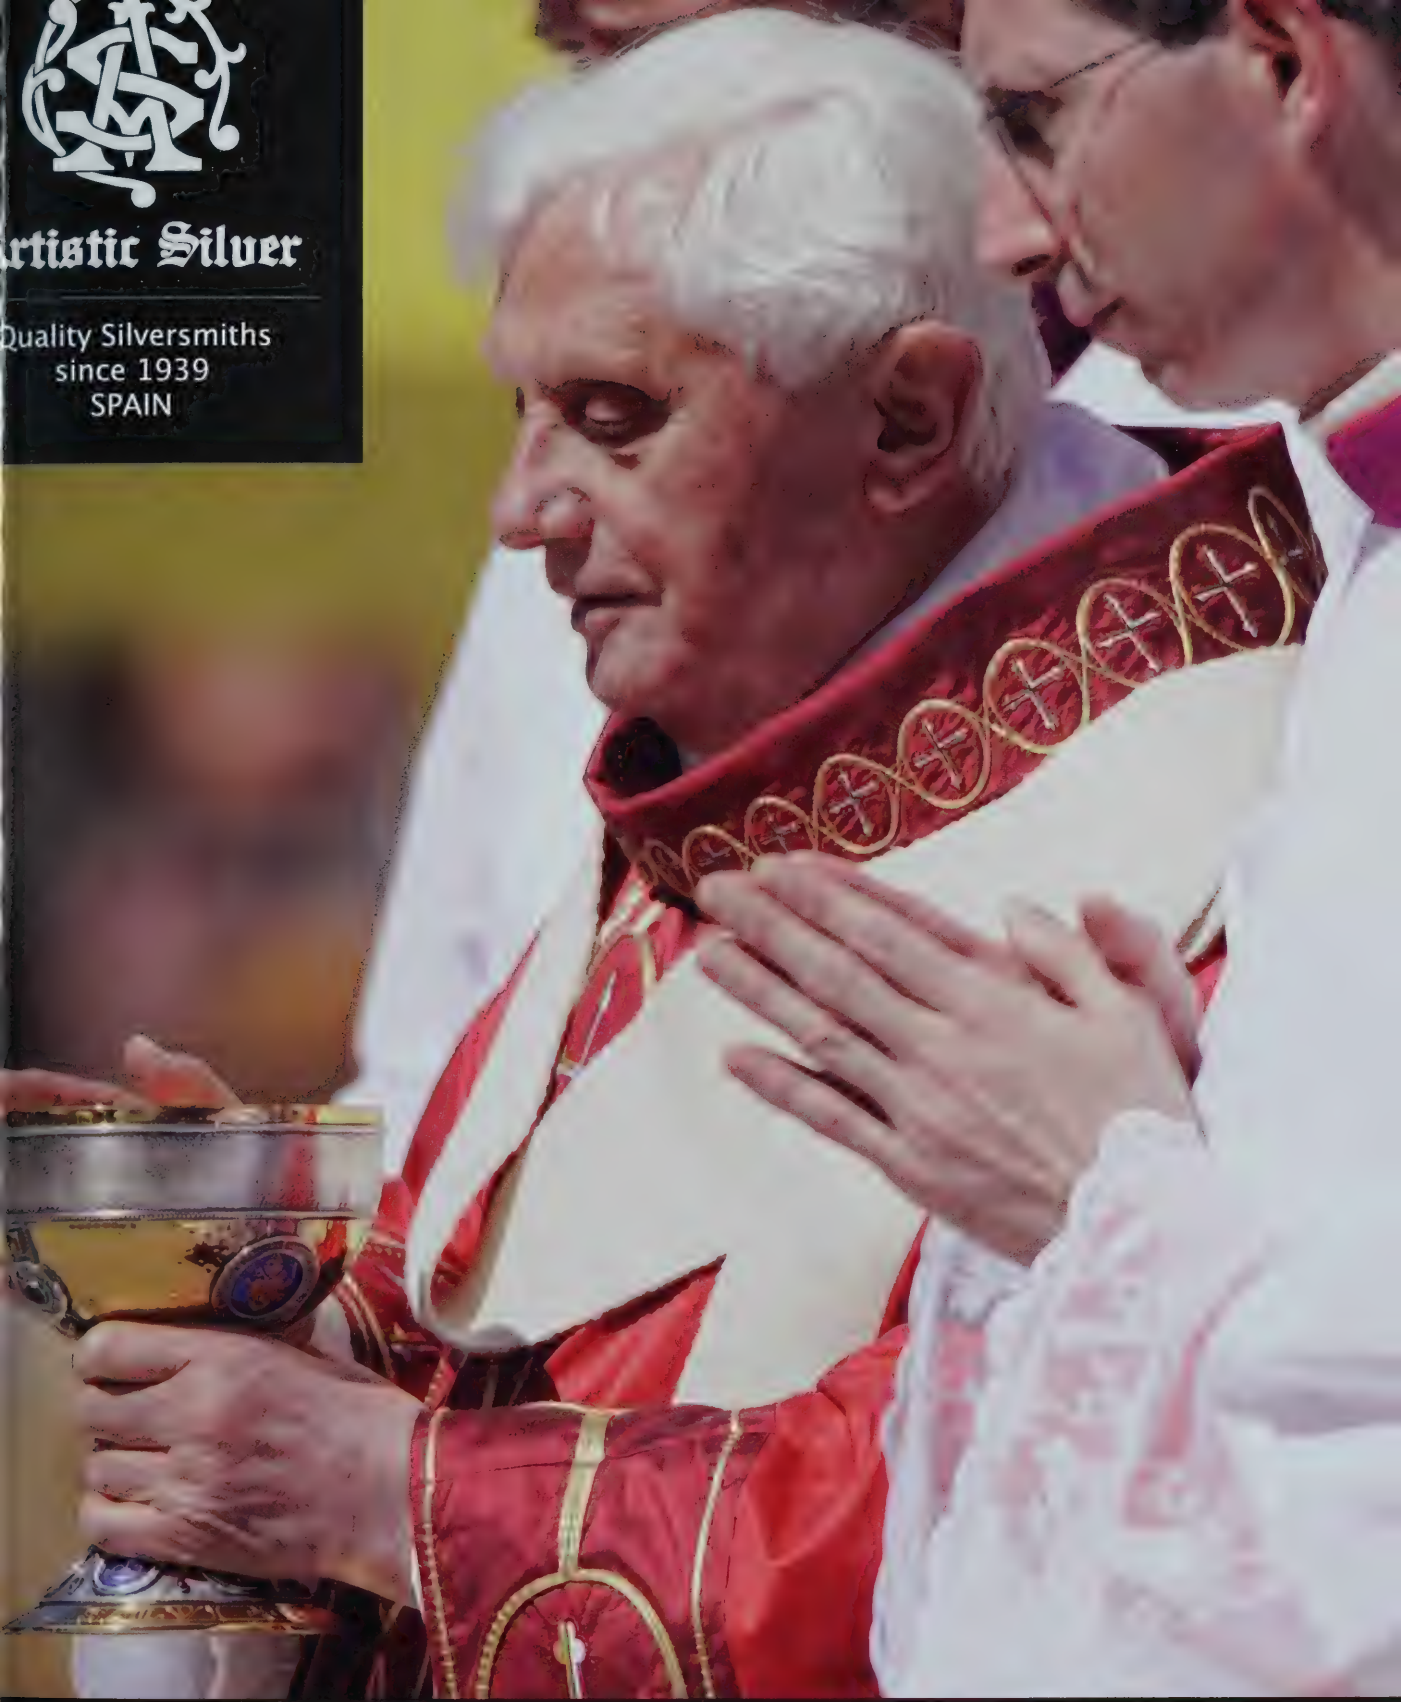
The Seal of P.J. Kenedy & Sons
The Official Catholic Directory

SIGNIFICANCE:

The shield is the central part of a heraldic device, which is more commonly known as a coat of arms. If that shield is enclosed within a body of text, or other type of surrounding configuration, the device becomes know as a seal, yet it is the shield portion of the design that is the most important, and that which is described technically as the blazon. As the design is examined, it must be remembered that by heraldic tradition the design is described (blazoned) as if being done by the bearer with the shield being worn on the arm. Therefore, the terms dexter and sinister will be reversed as the design is viewed from the front.



The shield of the seal for The Official Catholic Directory has been designed to reflect the character and heritage of this publication of P.J. Kenedy & Sons.

The shield is in two major portions. The right half (sinister impalement) is composed of the blue field on which are seen a silver tree, two candles (in silver or white) in their candleholders (of gold or yellow) and an open book, edged in gold and with a red bookmark. These symbols have been used over the years as the sign of the P.J. Kenedy and Sons publishing organization. These are the traditional symbols of knowledge and learning, so appropriate to a publisher.

The other side of the shield (the dexter impalement) is composed of a silver (white) field on which is seen a red cross, throughout, and a gold eagle. These symbols, combined with the field of the sinister impalement, are represented in the color of the flag of the United States of America and the eagle, the symbol of the United States. The cross represents Christianity and all of this combines to signify that The Official Catholic Directory annually reports on the Catholic Church in the United States.

The shield is surrounded by a laurel wreath of excellence and is enclosed within the legend that states the name of the company, the name of the publication and date (1817) of its founding.

1.7 MILLION MEN BELIEVE THEY CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE?

THEY ACTUALLY DO.

We are the Knights of Columbus. But we are more than just nearly 1.7 million members worldwide. We are mentors, leaders, and humanitarians. Last year, we volunteered over 68 million hours to help the needy and better our communities. We raised over $143 million for charities and local churches. At the same time, our nearly $70 billion life insurance program* provides financial security to our members and their families. We are able to do these things not only because we believe we can make a difference, but because we know we can.

GUIDANCE IN GIVING, INC.

Full Service Stewardship, Development & Campaign Consultants

Fundraising is not just about raising money, it is about being stewards of the faith.

As a full-service Catholic organization involved solely with developing programs for parishes, dioceses and schools, we have the experience and expertise to design a successful Stewardship-based capital campaign for your parish.

Guidance In Giving, Inc. offers its parish clients full-service campaign direction that is customized to the needs of each community. The firm understands that today's pastor faces many challenges. The challenges involve not only meeting the spiritual needs of his parishioners, but also the temporal needs of his parish. By designing and implementing an organized campaign plan, Guidance In Giving, Inc. aims to effectively use the time of pastors, parish staff and lay leadership to achieve the maximum financial potential. Our full- time, on-site service alleviates the worry that is sometimes associated with a fundraising campaign and allows parish leadership to concentrate on its most important mission, that of serving its people.

In a successful Stewardship-based capital campaign, every Catholic family is challenged to give prayerfully and proportionately to the best of their financial ability over a period of three to five years. Each and every gift is vitally important, therefore a key element of the campaign is to provide everyone the opportunity to make a decision after they have learned about the parish's needs. The most effective manner of educating each parish family and raising the maximum amount of funds is through personal education and solicitation. These personal solicitations can be done via visitation as well as small and large group receptions. These are the most commonly employed and most successful methods of raising funds.

A USER'S GUIDE TO THE OFFICIAL CATHOLIC DIRECTORY

Each year the editors of The Official Catholic Directory seek added ways of serving their subscribers. Although the book may never answer every question, this is the conscientious goal; its format, arrangement and editorial features are directed toward the convenience and needs of the public. Comments and suggestions are welcome. For the benefit of the subscriber and a more efficient use of The Official Catholic Directory and its cross references, a summary of the contents and their meaning follows:

The Official Catholic Directory* Glossary
A listing of some of the ecclesiastical terms and organizations found in the Directory.

The Governing Bodies in Vatican City
A chronological table of the Supreme Roman Pontiffs; the Pope, and an alphabetical list of the College of Cardinals; the duties of each of the agencies of the Roman Curia, and other commissions and institutions associated with the Holy See, along with their officers; a list of the Seminaries and National Colleges in Rome; the Apostolic Nunciature and the Permanent Observer Mission to the United Nations, with their staff. As foreign organizations, these entities are not included in the USCCB group tax exemption ruling ("Group Ruling").

The Catholic Church in the United States (Provinces)
The archdioceses and dioceses of the United States arranged under the provinces to which they belong, listed with their active archbishops and bishops.

Ecclesiastical forms of address recognized in the United States. Formal forms of address for correspondence with the clergy in the United States.

U.S. Cardinals, Archbishops, Bishops, Archabbots and Abbots
An alphabetical list of Cardinals, Archbishops, Bishops, Archabbots and Abbots, arranged within their specific title. Also listed is their address and status, followed by a hierarchical/chronological list by year.

United States Conference of Catholic Bishops
The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops is a permanent institute composed of Catholic bishops of the United States of America in and through which the bishops exercise in a communal or collegial manner the pastoral mission entrusted to them by the Lord Jesus of sanctification, teaching, and leadership, especially by devising forms and methods of the apostolate suitably adapted to the circumstances of the times. Such exercise is intended to offer appropriate assistance to each bishop in fulfilling his particular ministry in the local Church, to effect a commonality of ministry addressed to the people of the United States of America, and to foster and express communion with the Church in other nations within the Church universal, under the leadership of its chief pastor, the Pope.

Victims Assistance Coordinators pages.

Alphabetical Places List
The cities, towns, and villages where there is a church with a resident priest, or a Catholic institution, or both, together with the abbreviations of the archdiocese or diocese to which it belongs.

Dioceses and Archdioceses (in alphabetical sequence)
The most detailed information on the Catholic Church in the United States, including the Military Services, Eastern Churches, Personal Prelatures, and Apostolates to the Hungarians and Lithuanians. Listings are in alphabetical order according to the name of the diocese/archdiocese and include the diocesan curia and administrative offices; a parish-by-parish listing of clergy, churches, missions, and parochial schools; information on institutions, and the religious institutes of men and women located in the diocese/archdiocese; and a statistical profile for each diocese/archdiocese.

United States Territorial Sees
This section contains information on U.S. territories similar to that found in the preceding section.

American Foreign Missions
This section highlights the Religious working specifically in foreign countries. Each Province lists their U.S. members and the countries they serve in. For specific address requests, contact the mission office listed.

Missionary Activities
Organizations involved in missionary work in the U.S. and foreign countries.

United States Conference of Secular Institutes
An alphabetical list of secular organizations and their purposes.

U.S. Catholic Mission Association
An alphabetical list of countries served by the U.S. Catholic Mission Association, detailing the number and religious order or laity personnel working there.

Mission Churches
A list, by city, of mission churches in the U.S. and the parishes to which they are attached.

Religious Institutes of Men and Women
An alphabetical list of religious institutes of men and of women, using a P.J. Kenedy identification number. THE OFFICIAL CATHOLIC DIRECTORY GLOSSARY

Abbot
The superior of an autonomous community of men religious. He has general and sacramental jurisdiction over his community. The head of a prominent monastery or a congregation consisting of several monasteries is an archabbot.

Advocate
An ecclesiastical advocate is someone approved by Church authority to safeguard the rights of a party in a canonical process by arguments regarding the law and the facts of the case. [Cf. c. 1481 and CLSA Comm., p. 967]

Apostolate
Apostolate is the mission of Christ and participation in it. Its object is to bring Christ to others, its goal is the greater glory of God, its scope is universal. The work is carried out by every human agency by which the life of grace may be given or increased in the soul. A mandate from the Church is essential to the Catholic apostolate.

Archbishop
A bishop of a main or metropolitan diocese in an ecclesiastical province. The term is equivalent to metropolitan in the Western Church. It may also be granted to other ordinaries and non-residential bishops, and to the ordinary of a diocese outside a province.

Auditor
An official of a diocesan court, who gathers evidence and testimony and draws up a record of an ecclesiastical case.

Bishop
A bishop, by divine institution, carries on the work of the apostles. By reason of episcopal consecration, he shares in the triple apostolic function of teacher of doctrine, priest of sacred worship, and minister of church government. Bishops are responsible for the pastoral care of their dioceses. In addition, bishops have a responsibility to act in council to guide the Church. The term eparch is used in Eastern-rite churches.

The bishop to whom a particular or local church is entrusted is called a diocesan bishop or a residential bishop. Some other bishops receive Titular Sees over which they exercise no pastoral authority.
When the pastoral needs of a diocese or archdiocese warrant, an auxiliary bishop may be assigned to aid the residential bishop in governing his diocese. An auxiliary bishop is assigned when the residential bishop needs assistance in carrying out his duties because of ill health, advanced age, or amount of work. An auxiliary bishop does not have the right of succession within his diocese.

In special circumstances, such as the advanced age or ill health of a diocesan bishop, a coadjutator bishop may be appointed to assist the principal bishop of a diocese. Coadjutator bishops have the right of succession in the diocese of their appointment from the time the See becomes vacant upon the death or retirement of its bishop.

Brother
A man who is a member of a religious order, but is not ordained or studying for the priesthood.

Cana Conference
A Catholic family movement, originally designed to aid married couples and families in their spiritual and interpersonal relationships. The program is now divided into Pre-Cana, for couples engaged to be married, and Cana Conferences, programs for married people.

Catholic Fraternal Organizations
National Catholic fraternal organizations operating in the United States include the Knights of Columbus and the Knights of Peter Claver. These organizations are not included in the USCCB group tax exemption ruling.

Censor Librorum
A theologian empowered by a bishop to judge a book's soundness in regard to Church teaching before publication.

Chancellor
The office of the chancellor (or the chancery) evolved from the practice in the early Church of appointing an official to sign and preserve the letters of the bishop. The first function of the chancellor in the present day is gathering, arranging, and safeguarding the acts of the diocesan curia. Dispensations and other official documents also originate from the chancery. In many dioceses, the chancellor continues to exercise ordinary jurisdiction as delegated by the diocesan bishop. He or she may be assisted by a separate official, the vice-chancellor.

Chapter
The general chapter of a religious order is an assembly of elected or appointed members and provincials. General chapters are convened for the election of officers, amendments to the constitution, and discussion and legislation of matters of concern to members and the order as a whole.

A provincial chapter conducts elections and handles legislation on a provincial level. The assembly is comprised of superiors and representatives of the religious.
A chapter of canons is a group of diocesan priests, appointed by the bishop of a diocese, with assigned authority or responsibilities.

College of Cardinals
The College of Cardinals is made up of the cardinals of the Church, who advise the Pope, assist in the central administration of the Church, head the various curial offices and congregations, administer the Holy See during a vacancy, and elect a new Pope. There are three ranks in the College of Cardinals, corresponding to the historical origins of cardinals in the Roman Catholic Church. All cardinals are bishops, but their rank within the College of Cardinals is characterized by one of the hierarchical ranks of bishop, priest, or deacon. Cardinals are given honorary title to churches in the city of Rome. [CF. c. 350; CLSA Comm., pp. 288-289]

1. Cardinal Bishops
There are two types of Cardinal Bishops: 1) those appointed by the Pope as titular bishops to one of the six suburban dioceses of Rome, and 2) Eastern-rite Patriarchs who are heads of Sees with apostolic origins that have been assigned to the College of Cardinals.

2. Cardinal Priests
Heads of Sees outside the city of Rome are assigned a "titular church," one of the churches in Rome. They have no pastoral authority over their titular church.

3. Cardinal Deacons
Cardinals of diaconal rank are bishops without Sees who head the various departments, offices, congregations, committees, and the Secretariat of State of the Roman Curia.

Confraternity of Christian Doctrine [CCD]
A lay organization established for religious education throughout a person's entire life. The term is currently used to describe Catholic parish-based religious education of children from kindergarten through high school. At the diocesan level, the offices are now more commonly known as offices of religious education or Christian formation. Nationally, the confraternity's religious education component has been taken over by the USCCB's Department of Education. It still exists as a separate entity under the USCCB Administrative Board, with responsibility for licensing religious and spiritual literature.

Consolidated School
The term, as used in the Directory, may refer to a school that takes students from more than one parish, or a school that was formed by the consolidation of two or three other schools. In both cases, it is a means of keeping a Catholic school in a given area open by taking students from the surrounding areas, regardless of parish boundaries.

Convent
In common usage, the term refers to a house of women religious. Originally, it referred to a building where members of religious institutes lived, and was not restricted to communities of women.

Cursillo
The cursillo de cristianidad, or "little course in Christianity," is a three-day program for achieving spiritual renewal or spiritual awakening. It seeks to convey a new sense of individual and organized apostolic action. The program, conducted by priests and laypeople, consists of a three-day weekend focused on prayer, study, and Christian action, and a follow-up program known as the post-cursillo.

Deacons

The diaconate is the first order or grade in ordained ministry. Its origins are in early apostolic times, when deacons preached and baptized under the direction of the presbyters or bishops. Any man who is to be ordained to the priesthood must first be ordained as a transitional deacon. Deacons serve in the ministry of liturgy, of the word, and of charity.

In 1967, Pope Paul VI reinstituted the Permanent Diaconate for men who do not plan to become ordained priests. Although men ordained as permanent deacons are sometimes referred to as "married deacons," the permanent diaconate is open to both married and unmarried men, with the understanding that after ordination, they may not marry even after the death of a spouse. Under the authority of the diocesan bishop, they perform the same functions as the transitional deacons while, at the same time, retaining their roles in society as family and business men.

Deàn/Vicar Forane

The title of a priest appointed by the bishop to aid him in administering the parishes in a certain vicinity, called a "deanery," or "vicariates forane." The function of a dean, or vicar forane, involves promotion, coordination, and supervision of the common pastoral activity within the deanery or vicariate.

Defender of the Bond

A member of a diocesan tribunal, either a cleric or a lay person, holding a graduate degree in canon law, who is appointed by the diocesan bishop for cases concerning the nullity of sacred ordination or the nullity or dissolution of the marriage bond. The defender of the bond is responsible for a review of the evidence, scrutiny of the briefs, examination of witnesses, and maintenance of proper procedures during the trial. The defender also deals with some situations concerning the content of the litigation rather than the legal procedures.

Diocesan Consultors

An advisory council of diocesan priests, as appointed by a diocesan bishop, that assists in the administrative affairs of the diocese.

Diocesan Curia

The personnel and offices assisting the diocesan bishop in directing the pastoral activity, administration, and the exercise of judicial power of his diocese. The curia includes among its officers laity and religious as well as clergy. Principal officers of a diocesan curia are the vicar general of the diocese, the chancellor, officials of the diocesan tribunal, examiners, consultors, auditors, the promoter of justice and the defender of the bond.

Diocese

The standard term for a territorial division of the Church, entrusted to a bishop who rules in his own name as local ordinary, and not as a delegate of another. The chief diocese of a province is an archdiocese. It is headed by an archbishop. A diocese is usually limited to a definite territory so that it comprises all the faithful who inhabit that territory. [Cf. cc. 369 and 372, #1] In Eastern-rite churches, the term eparchy is used.

Eastern-rite [Oriental] Church

The term used to describe the Catholic churches which developed in Eastern Europe, Asia, and Africa. The Eastern-rite churches have their own distinctive liturgical and organizational systems. Each is considered equal to the Latin rite within the Church.

Eastern Catholic Association

The eastern catholic association is the association of all Eastern Catholic Bishops in the United States. All Eastern Catholic Bishops, diocesan bishops (and their equivalent in law) and auxiliaries are members. The Association represents the Armenian, Chaldean, Maronite Melikite, Romanian, Ruthenian and Ukrainian Churches. The Syriac, Syro-Malabar and Russian churches are also represented but without a bishop member since they are presently have no established hierarchy in the United States.

Ecumenism/Ecumenical Movement

A movement for spiritual understanding and unity among Christians and their churches. The term is also extended to apply to efforts toward greater understanding and cooperation between Christians and members of other faiths.

Exarch/Exarchy

A church jurisdiction, similar to a diocese, established for Eastern-rite Catholics living outside their native land. The head of an exarchy, usually a bishop, is an exarch.

Hierarchy

In general, the term refers to the ordered body of clergy, divided into bishops, priests, and deacons. In Catholic practice, the term refers to the bishops of the world or of a particular region.

Similarly, triarchs within nations have only an honorary title unless special provisions are le otherwise. Eastern-rite Patriarchs are subject to the Pope while serving as ds of the faithful belonging to their rites throughout the world.

rsonal Prelature

addition to the territorial arrangement of the Church into particular or local rches or dioceses, canon law also provides for non-territorial areas of religious sdiction, incorporating secular clergy and deacons. Membership is also open to lay sons. These prelatures are established to meet specific pastoral or missionary needs he regional, national, or international level without infringing on the rights of the l bishops. A prelature is presided over by a personal prelate, who is an ordinary with right to establish seminaries and ordain priests as members of the prelature.

non law also allows for laity to be associated in the works of prelatures without ng withdrawn from the jurisdiction of their own diocesan bishop.

Personal prelatures are jurisdictional structures of a secular type which are established by the Holy See as an instrument within the hierarchical pastoral work of the Church to carry out special pastoral or missionary tasks. Personal prelatures are based on the principle of insertion into the local Church. In this they differ essentially from the personal dioceses, such as those constituted for the faithful of a particular rite, which are based on the principle of independence or autonomy in regard to local Churches.

Vatican II provided for setting up personal prelatures (see Decree, Presbyterorum ordinis, no. 10). Additional norms were established in subsequent pontifical legislation (see Motu proprio Ecclesiae Sanctae no. 1, no. 4, August 6, 1966 and the Apostolic Constitution Regimini Ecclesiae Universae, no. 49, no. 1, Aug. 15, 1967). General legislation concerning personal prelatures is contained in canons 294 to 297 of the 1983 Code of Canon Law.

Personal prelatures are to be established by the Holy See after hearing the views of the respective Episcopal Conferences (can. 294). They are governed by a Prelate according to statutes given by the Holy See. The Prelate is their proper Ordinary, who may incardinate priests and must look after their spiritual and temporal welfare (can. 295). Lay people can dedicate themselves by means of a contractual agreement, to the apostolic activities of the prelature; the statutes are to specify the manner of this organic cooperation (can. 296). And the statutes are also to determine the relations of the prelature with the Ordinaries of the places in which the prelature works, with the prior consent of the Ordinaries (can. 297).

Presbyteral Council

Also known as the priests' council, the presbyteral council is the principal consultative body mandated by the Code of Canon Law to advise the diocesan bishop in matters of pastoral governance. It consists of bishops and priests serving the diocese.

Propagation of the Faith

An organization, headquartered in Rome, which distributes aid to Catholic missions and organizes the work of missionaries all over the world. The organization has responsibility for fostering missionary vocations, assigning missionaries to field work, defining ecclesiastical boundaries and assigning clergy to them, and encouraging training and installation of native-born clergy.

Promoter of Justice

A cleric or lay person, holding a graduate degree in canon law, who is appointed by the diocesan bishop to serve in the role of a "prosecuting attorney" in trials of crimes against church law and of other judicial litigations in the diocese. A promoter of justice may be appointed for a specific case by the bishop.

Province

A defined geographic area containing an archdiocese, or Metropolitan See, and at least one diocese, or Suffragen See. The archbishop of the archdiocese has no direct powers over the Suffragen Sees, but does have limited advisory and appellate authority and obligations. The term also refers to a territorial grouping of particular churches or communities, or a territory of a religious order.

Provincial

The superior of the communities of a religious order that constitute a province.

Provincial Council

An assembly of the bishops of an ecclesiastical province, called by the metropolitan archbishop. The term is also used in reference to the provincial superior of a province, along with his or her chief advisors.

Receptions into the Church

Can take two forms: baptism of those not previously validly baptized, or "reception into full communion" with the Church for those who have already been baptized, in which case a profession of faith affects the reception.

Scholastic Teaching

Usually refers to Scholastic Philosophy, which is the basis for much Catholic Theology. It comes from the canonical "schools" of the 12th-13th centuries, St. Thomas Aquinas, St. Bonaventure, St. Albert the Great, etc., who developed "scholasticism" based mainly on Aristotle. It is the semi-official philosophy of the Church.

Secular Institute

Canonically erected institute of consecrated life for single laity and clerics who strive for the perfection of charity and work for the sanctification of the world while remaining in a lifestyle within the world.

See

The word is taken from the Latin word "sedes" ("seat"), and is used to denote a diocese or ecclesiastical district. The term Holy See is reserved to the diocese of Rome whose bishop is the Pope. U.S. Territorial Sees are dioceses located on territory of the United States of America, but are members of episcopal confereences other than the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Seminary

An educational institution for men preparing for Holy Orders. The term originates from the time of St. Augustine, when those preparing for the priesthood were educated in the "cathedral school." During the Middle Ages, the clergy were educated in a university setting where faculties of philosophy, theology, and canon law existed. Eventually individual dioceses or provinces came to establish their own schools for educating their clerical students. Traditional seminaries date from the Council of Trent in the 16th century.

A school for the spiritual, academic, and pastoral education and formation of priesthood candidates is known as a major seminary in which the focus is on philosophical and theological education. To prepare for entrance into a major seminary, a period of study is set aside for the required courses in the humanities and the sciences in institutions called minor seminaries.

Serra Club

Local units of Serra International, an organization which promotes vocations to the priesthood and religious life, and offers instruction to lay leaders.

Sister

PART I

Hierarchy of the Catholic Church

The Hierarchy, as the supreme governing body of the Catholic Church, consists of the Roman Pontiff, the successor of Peter, and the Bishops joined together with him and never without him (canons 330,331,336) in one apostolic college to provide for the common good of the Church. The Roman Pontiff in the exercise of his office is assisted by the College of Cardinals, and further by the departments also called "dicasteries" of the Roman Curia. The Bishops, of whom some bear the titles of Patriarch and Archbishop, are united with the Roman Pontiff in the governance of the whole Church; the Bishops, when assigned to particular Sees, are individually responsible for the teaching, sanctification and governance of their particular Church. Apostolic Vicars and Prefects together with certain Abbots and other Prelates are also joined in this work.

HIS HOLINESS THE POPE

Bishop of Rome and Vicar of Jesus Christ,
Successor of St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles,
Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church.
Primate of Italy.
Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Roman Province,
Sovereign of Vatican City State.
Servant of the Servants of God

Benedict XVI

JOSEPH RATZINGER

The present successor of St. Peter was born in Marktl am Inn, Diocese of Passau, April 16, 1927; ordained Priest, June 29, 1951; appointed Archbishop of Munchen und Freising March 25, 1977 and consecrated May 28, 1977; Proclaimed and created Cardinal June 27, 1977. Elected Pope, April 19, 2005; installed April 24, 2005.

VATICAN CITY

Vatican City is the smallest state in the world, occupying 108.7 acres, of which about one third is covered with buildings and is situated on the right side of the Tiber River. Vatican City has territory, population, and sovereignity. This territory, limited as it is, suffices to guarantee the spiritual and temporal independence needed for the exercise of the Holy See's spiritual mission. In 1870 the Kingdom of Italy seized all Vatican possessions which for several centuries had constituted the papal temporal domain. But even after 1870 the Holy See continued to regard itself as a separate entity in international law, and was recognized as such by numerous states with which it retained normal diplomatic relations. After long discussions the Holy See and the then Kingdom of Italy signed the Lateran Pacts on February 11, 1929, so that the complete and independent authority of the Vatican State was and is recognized by the Italian state.

The Sovereign of this small state is His Holiness, the Pope.

The government presently is administered by a Pontifical Commission of which His Eminence Edmund Casimir Cardinal Szoka is President.

THE COLLEGE OF CARDINALS

The Cardinals constitute a special college and they assist the Roman Pontiff collegially when they are called together to deal with questions of major importance; they do so individually when they assist the Pope especially in the daily care of the universal Church by means of the different offices which they perform (canons 349-350). The Cardinals who are under eighty years of age elect his successor.

The College of Cardinals is divided into three ranks: Cardinal-Bishops, Cardinal-Priests, and Cardinal-Deacons. The College of Cardinals, when complete formerly consisted of 70 members: 6 Cardinal Bishops, 50 Cardinal Priests and 14 Cardinal Deacons, but the late Pontiffs, Pope John XXIII and Pope Paul VI enlarged the College of Cardinals. At the moment the maximum number of Cardinal electors (those under 80 years of age) must not exceed 120.

The Cardinal Bishops (except the Patriarch-Cardinals of the Oriental Rites), have as Titular Sees the Suburban Sees of Rome, which are: Porto Santa Rufina, Albano, Palestrina, Sabina, Frascati, Velletri, Segni. The Cardinal Dean has united to his See the See of Ostia. The Cardinal Priests take their title from the Titular Churches to which they are appointed: the Cardinal Deacons are appointed to other Churches called Deaconries. The first Cardinal Bishop is Dean; the first Cardinal Priest is First Priest; and the first Cardinal Deacon is First Deacon of the Sacred College. The Dean has the right of ordaining the new Pope if he is not already a bishop; the First Deacon has the right of proclaiming him and investing him with the sacred Pallium. On the death of the Pontiff, the Cardinal Camerlengo has the Administration of the affairs of the Holy See.

Sometimes the Roman Pontiff promotes a person to the dignity of Cardinal but does not make public his name and keeps it in pectore. Upon the publication of his name, this Cardinal enjoys his right of precedence from the day on which his name was reserved in pectore by the Pope (cfr. Can. 351¶ 3).

The Roman Curia

ıe present norms regarding the Roman Curia were publicly announced June 28, 1988, in the Pastor Bonus - Constitutio Apostolica de Romana Curia, and published in A.A.S. LXXX/1988, Commentarium Officiale; pp. 841-934. The Supreme Pontiff usually conducts business of the universal Church by means of the Roman Curia, which fulfills its duty in his name and by his authority for the good and the service of the Churches; it consists of the Secretariat of State or the Papal Secretariat, congregations, tribunals and other institutions, whose structure and competency are defined in special law (can. 360). The Roman curia is the complex of departments and institutes which assist the Roman Pontiff in the exercise of his supreme pastoral function for the good and service of the universal Church and of the particular churches, by which the unity of faith and communion of the people of God is strengthened and the mission is promoted which is proper to the Church in the world.

I. THE SECRETARIAT OF STATE TO HIS HOLINESS

ıe Secretariat of State is the dicastery of the Roman Curia which works most closely with the Supreme Pontiff in the exercise of his universal mission (Pastor Bonus, Art. 39). The Secretariat of State is presided over by a Cardinal who assumes the title of Secretary of State. As the Pope's first Collaborator in the governance of the universal Church, the Cardinal Secretary of State is the one primarily responsible for the diplomatic and political activity of the Holy See, in some circumstances representing the person of the Supreme Pontiff himself.

ıe Secretariat of State includes two sections, namely: the First Section that is headed by an Archbishop, the Substitute for General Affairs, assisted by a Prelate, the Assessor for General Affairs; and the Second Section of the Secretariat of State headed by an Archbishop, the Secretary for Relations with States, aided by a Prelate, the Under-Secretary for Relations with States, and assisted by Cardinals and Bishops.

:cretary of State: His Eminence Tarcisio Cardinal Bertone.

ffice: Apostolic Palace, 00120 Vatican City State, Europe. Tel: 06-69.88.39.13; Fax: 06-69.88.52.55.

y the name of department (dicasteria) is understood: the congregations, tribunals, councils and offices, namely the Apostolic Camera, the Administration of the Patrimony of the Apostolic See, and the Prefecture of Economic Affairs of the Holy See. The departments are juridically equal among themselves. Attached to the institutes of the Roman Curia are the Prefecture of the Papal Household and the Office of Liturgical Celebrations of the Supreme Pontiff.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith

he proper function of the Congregation on the Doctrine of the Faith is to promote and safeguard the doctrine of faith and morals in the whole Catholic world; therefore, those things belong to it which touch this matter in any way. Fulfilling the function of promoting doctrine, it fosters studies in order that the understanding of the faith might grow and that a response can be prepared under the light of faith for new questions arising from developments in science and human culture. It is a help to bishops, whether individually or gathered in assemblies, in the exercise of the function by which they are constituted authentic teachers and doctors of the faith as well as the office by which they are held to safeguard and promote the integrity of that faith. This Sacred Congregation reproves doctrines opposed to the principles of the faith after the interested Bishops of a region have been heard. It studies the books referred to it and, if necessary, reproves them after the author has been heard and has had an opportunity to defend himself and after the Ordinary has been forewarned. It also examines whatever concerns "the privilege of the faith" whether in law and in fact. It is competent to pass judgment on errors about the faith according to the norms of an ordinary process. It safeguards the dignity of the sacrament of Penance. The Congregation proceeds administratively or judicially according to the nature of the question to be treated.

Prefect: His Eminence William J. Cardinal Levada.

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Angelo Amato, S.D.B.

Office: Piazza del S. Uffizio 11, 00193 Rome, Italy. Tel: 69.88.33.57; 69.88.34.13; Fax: 69.88.34.09.

The Congregation for the Causes of Saints

The Congregation for the Causes of Saints is competent in all matters which in any way pertain to the Beatification of Servants of God or to the Canonization of the Blessed or to the Preservation of Relics.

This Congregation is divided into three offices.

Prefect: His Eminence Jose Cardinal Saraiva Martins, C.M.F.

Secretary: Rev. Msgr. Michele Di Ruberto.

Office: Piazza Pio XII 10, 00193 Rome, Italy. Tel: 011 39 06 69.88.42.47; Fax: 011 39 06 6988 1935.

First Section: For General Affairs

In conformity with Arts. 41-44 of Pastor Bonus, the Section for General Affairs or the First Section is responsible for handling matters regarding the everyday service of the Supreme Pontiff, both in caring for the universal Church and in dealing with the dicasteries of the Roman Curia. It attends to the preparation of whatever documents the Holy Father entrusts to it. It enacts the provisions for appointments within the Roman Curia and keeps custody of the Lead Seal and the Fisherman's Ring. It regulates the duties and activity of the Holy See's Representatives, especially in relation to the local Churches. It attends to all that concerns the Embassies accredited to the Holy See. It supervises the Holy See's official communication agencies and is responsible for publishing the "Acta Apostolicae Sedis" and the "Annuario Pontificio".

Substitute: Most Rev. Archbishop Fernando Filoni.

Assessor: Rev. Msgr. Gabriele Giordano Caccia.

Office: Apostolic Palace, 00120 Vatican City State, Europe. Tel: 06.69.88.34.38 Fax: 06.69.88.50.88.

Second Section: For Relations with States

On the basis of Arts. 45-47 of Pastor Bonus, the Section for Relations with States or Second Section has the specific duty of attending to matters which involve civil governments. It has responsibility for the Holy See's diplomatic relations with States, including the establishing of Concordats or similar agreements; for the Holy See's presence in international organizations and conferences; in special circumstances, by order of the Supreme Pontiff and in consultation with the competent dicasteries of the Curia, provides for appointments to particular Churches, and for their establishment or modification; in close collaboration with the Congregation for Bishops, it attends to the appointment of Bishops in countries which have entered into treaties or agreements with the Holy See in accordance with the norms of international law.

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Dominique Mamberti.

Under-Secretary: Rev. Monsignor Pietro Parolin.

Office: Apostolic Palace, 00120 Vatican City State, Europe. Tel: 06.69.88.30.14; Fax: 06.69.88.53.64.

II. THE CONGREGATIONS

The Congregation for the Oriental Churches

This Congregation considers those matters, whether regarding persons or things, which touch on the Eastern Catholic Churches. It treats all questions which pertain either to persons, or to discipline, or to the rites of the Oriental Churches, even if they are mixed in that by the nature of the thing or of persons they involve Latins. Territories in which a major part of the Christians belong to Oriental rites are subject only to this Congregation. Even in Latin territories it carefully supervises the faithful of Oriental rites and provides as much as possible for their spiritual needs even by the establishment of their own hierarchy if the number of faithful and circumstances require this.

Prefect: His Eminence Leonardo Cardinal Sandri.

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Antonio Maria Vegliò, Titular Archbishop of Cadi.

Office: Via della Conciliazione 34, 00193 Rome, Italy. Tel: 69.88.42.93; Fax: 69.88.43.00.

The Congregation for Bishops

This congregation examines what pertains to the constitution and provision of particular churches as well as the exercise of the episcopal function in the Latin Church, except for the competence of the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples. It belongs to the Congregation for Bishops to propose to the Roman Pontiff, for approval, the constitution of new dioceses, provinces and regions; to divide, unite and realign them after consulting the interested Episcopal Conferences; it deals also with the erection of the military ordinariates and, after consulting the Episcopal Conference, prelacies for special pastoral ministries for various regions or social groups. This Congregation provides also for the naming of bishops, apostolic administrators, coadjutors and auxiliaries of bishops, military and other vicars and prelates enjoying personal jurisdiction.

It is competent for all things that have to do with bishops and publishes norms which, through the Episcopal Conference, provide for the more urgent needs of the faithful.

Prefect: His Eminence Giovanni Battista Cardinal Re

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Francesco Monterisi.

Office: Piazza Pio XII 10, 00193 Rome, Italy. Tel: 69.88.42.17; Fax: 69.88.53.03.

Pontifical Commission for Latin America

(Directly responsible to Congregation for Bishops)

President: His Eminence Giovanni Battista Cardinal Re.

Vice President: Most Rev. Archbishop Jose Octavio Ruiz Arenas.

The Congregation for Divine Worship and the Discipline of the Sacraments

This congregation does those things which pertain to the Apostolic See as to the moderation and promotion of the sacred liturgy, especially the sacraments, with due regard for the competence of the Congregation on Doctrine of the Faith. It fosters and safeguards the discipline of the sacraments, especially what pertains to their valid and licit celebration; moreover, it concedes favors and dispensations for matters which are not contained in the facilities of diocesan bishops in this line. It alone examines the non-consummation of a marriage and the presence of causes for the granting of a dispensation and everything connected with them. It has competence with regard to the obligations connected with major orders and it examines questions about the validity of sacred ordination.

Prefect: His Eminence Francis Cardinal Arinze.

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Don Albert Malcolm Ranjith Patabendige.

Office: Piazza Pio XII 10, 00193 Rome, Italy. Tel: 69.88.43.16; Fax: 69.88.34.99.

The Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples or for the Propagation of the Faith

It belongs to this congregation to direct and coordinate throughout the world the work of the evangelization of peoples itself and missionary cooperation, while respecting the competence of the Congregation for Eastern Churches. It is competent for those things which pertain to all the missions established for the spread of the Kingdom of Christ throughout the world and therefore for whatever is connected with the assignment and transferal of the necessary ministers, for describing ecclesiastical boundaries and proposing those who will govern them. It encourages also the development of an indigenous clergy. The congregation sponsors missionary initiatives and promotes missionary vocations and spirituality. In the territories subject to it, the Congregation has charge of all that pertains to the holding of synods and councils, to the establishing of episcopal conferences and to the review of their statutes and decrees. The Congregation has a Supreme Council for the direction of Pontifical Missionary Works, on which depend the general Councils of the Missionary Union of the Clergy, the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, the Society of St. Peter the Apostle, and the Society of the Holy Childhood.

Prefect: His Eminence Ivan Cardinal Dias.

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Robert Sarah.

Adjunct Secretary and President of Pontifical Missionary Works: Most Rev. Archbishop Henry K. Hoser, S.A.C.

Office: Palazzo di Propaganda Fide, Piazza di Spagna 48, 00187 Rome, Italy. Tel: 011 39 06 6987 9299; Fax: 011 39 06 6988 01 18.

The Congregation for Institutes of Consecrated Life and for Societies of Apostolic Life

The principal function of this congregation is to promote and supervise, in the whole Latin Church, the practices of the evangelical counsels as they are exercised in approved forms of consecrated life and at the same time the activities of societies of apostolic life. The Congregation takes care of Religious Institutes of Consecrated Life and Secular Institutes.

Religious Institutes: the Congregation is entrusted with the affairs of all religious institutes of the Latin Rite and their members. It is also competent in matters which pertain to societies of common life, whose members live like religious, or to Third Orders as such.

Secular Institutes: the Congregation is competent in the same way, all else being equal, for Apostolic Societies which, although not religious, make a true and complete profession of the evangelical counsels in the world.

Cardinal Prefect: His Eminence Franc Cardinal Rode.

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Gianfranco Gardin, O.F.M.Conv.

Office: Piazza Pio XII 3, 00193 Rome, Italy. Tel: 69.88.41.28; Fax: 69.88.45.26.

The Congregation for the Clergy

With due regard for the rights of bishops and their conferences, this congregation examines those things which concern priests and deacons of the secular clergy with regard to their persons, pastoral ministry, matters which are in support of the exercise of these things, and in all this provides opportune assistance to the bishops. The Congregation has many functions: studies, proposes and urges the means and aids by which priests strive for sanctity. This office also has charge of everything which concerns the work and discipline of the diocesan clergy. Particularly it promotes the preaching of the Word of God and the works of the apostolate and organization of catechesis, evaluates and approves pastoral and catechetical directories, fosters national and international Catechetical Congresses and indicates the opportune norms for religious instruction of children, young people and adults. The Congregation looks also to the preservation and administration of the temporal goods of the Church without prejudice to the other Congregations which have temporal goods committed to their vigilance.

Prefect: His Eminence Claudio Cardinal Hummes, O.F.M.

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Mauro Piacenza.

Office: Piazza Pio XII 3, 00193 Rome, Italy. Tel: 69.88.41.51; Fax: 69.88.48.45.

The Congregation for Catholic Education (of Seminaries and Institutes of Studies)

This Congregation expresses and exercises the Apostolic See's solicitude for the formation of those who are called to holy orders as well as for the promotion and organization of Catholic education. It is competent for all that pertains to the formation of clerics and the Catholic education both of clerics and of the laity.

The Congregation has many functions and is charg with the direction, discipline and temporal admin tration of seminaries and whatever touches the ec cation of the diocesan clergy and the scientific form tion of religious and secular institutes.

The Congregation oversees universities, faculti athenaea and any institute of higher learning whi has the name "Catholic" in so far as they depend the authority of the Church, not excluding those rected by religious or the laity.

The Congregation cares for the establishment of par chial and diocesan schools; watches over all Catho schools below the level of a university and faculty, well as all institutes of instruction or education d pendent on the authority of the Church.

Also within the Congregation is located the Pontific Work for Vocations, which is charged with coordina ing and promoting the work of fostering all ecclesia tical vocations.

Prefect: His Eminence Zenon Cardinal Grocholewski.

Secretary: Most Rev. Archbishop Jean-Louis Brugues.

Office: Piazza Pio XII 3, 00193 Rome, Italy. Tel: 69 8 41 67; Fax: 69 88 41 72.

III. TRIBUNALS

Apostolic Penitentiary

The competence of this Tribunal is concerned with those matters which pertain to the internal forum, for both the sacramental and non-sacramental internal forum. It is competent in matters pertaining to the granting and use of indulgences.

Major Penitentiary: His Eminence J. Francis Cardinal Stafford.

Office: Piazza della Cancelleria 1, 00186 Rome, Italy. Tel: 011 39 06 6988 75 26; Fax: 011 39 06 6988 75 57.

Supreme Tribunal of the Apostolic Signatura

This department, in addition to the function which it exercises as Supreme Tribunal, consults that justice may be correctly administered in the Church.

With the many functions, the Apostolic Signatura judges the matters assigned to it in the Code of Canon Law; it prorogues the competence of tribunals; it extends the forum for strangers in Rome to cases of matrimonial nullity in extraordinary circumstances and for grave reasons; it supervises the proper administration of justice; it provides for the establishment of regional and interregional tribunals; it enjoys the rights assigned to it in concordats between the Holy See and the various nations.

The Tribunal settles questions about the exercise of administrative ecclesiastical power which are referred to it. It also passes on conflicts of competence among the departments of the Holy See; it examines administrative matters referred to it by the Congregations of the Roman Curia as well as questions committed to it by the Holy Father.

Prefect: His Eminence Agostino Cardinal Vallini.

Secretary: Most Rev. Bishop Velasio De Paolis, C.S.

Office: Piazza della Cancelleria 1, 00186 Rome, Italy. Tel: 69.88.75.20; Fax: 69.88.75.53.

Tribunal of the Roman Rota

This tribunal acts as a higher instance at the Apostol See, usually in the grade of appeal, for safeguardin rights in the Church; it fosters the unity of jurispr dence and, through its own sentences, is a help to lowe tribunals. It is also a court of first instance for case specified in the law and for others committed to th Rota by the Roman Pontiff. The greater part of it decisions concern the nullity of marriage. In such case its competence includes marriages between two Cath lics, between a Catholic and non-Catholic, and betwee two non-Catholic parties whether one or both of th baptized parties belongs to a Latin or Oriental Rite.

The Catholic Church in the United States

The organizational structure of the Catholic Church in the United States consists of 33 Provinces with as many Archdioceses (Metropolitan Sees); 149 Suffragan Sees (Dioceses); The Military Archdiocese; four Eastern-Rite jurisdictions immediately subject to the Holy See in Rome. The Eparchies of St. Maron (Maronites), Newton (Melkites), St. Thomas the Apostle of Detroit (Chaldeans) and St. George Martyr of Canton, Ohio (Romanians), St. Thomas of Chicago of the Syro-Malabarians. Each of these jurisdictions is under the direction of an Archbishop and Bishop called an Ordinary, who has apostolic responsibility and authority for the pastoral service of the people in his care.

The structure includes the territorial episcopal conference known as the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops. In and through this body, which is strictly ecclesiastical and has defined juridical authority, the Bishops exercise their collegiate pastorate over the Church in the entire country.

Related to the USCCB is the civil corporation and operational secretariat through which the Bishops, in cooperation with other members of the Church, act on a wider-than-ecclesiastical scale for the good of the Church and society in the United States.

The following is a list of the thirteen regions in the United States and provinces within those regions.

Region I: Includes the states of Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut. Provinces of Boston and Hartford; Eparchy of Stamford and Eparchy for Melkites.

United States Conference of Catholic Bishops

Address—3211 Fourth St., N.E., Washington, DC 20017-1194. Tel: 202-541-3000; Web Site: www.usccb.org.

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops is a permanent institute composed of Catholic bishops of the United States of America in and through which the bishops exercise in a communal or collegial manner the pastoral mission entrusted to them by the Lord Jesus of sanctification, teaching, and leadership, especially by devising forms and methods of the apostolate suitably adapted to the circumstances of the times. Such exercise is intended to offer appropriate assistance to each bishop in fulfilling his particular ministry in the local Church, to effect a commonality of ministry addressed to the people of the United States of America, and to foster and express communion with the Church in other nations within the Church universal, under the leadership of its chief pastor, the Pope.

Catholic Relief Services is the official international humanitarian agency of the U.S. Catholic community. CRS alleviates suffering and provides assistance to people in need in more than 100 countries, without regard to race, religion or nationality.
CRS was founded in 1943 by the bishops of the United States to assist the poor and disadvantaged outside this country — helping people in need for 65 years.
CRS is efficient and effective directing more than 94 percent of the agency's expenditures directly to programs that benefit the poor overseas. Our agency touches more than 80 million lives, by addressing the root causes and effects of poverty, promoting human dignity, and helping to build more just and peaceful societies.
Our relief and development work is accomplished through programs of emergency response, HIV, health, agriculture, education, microfinance and peacebuilding.

We serve Catholics in the United States by inviting them to live out their faith as part of one human family.

Catholic Charities USA is a national network of more than 1,700 local Catholic Charities agencies and institutions that provide help and create hope for more than 7.8 million people a year regardless of their religious, social, or economic backgrounds.

For more than 280 years, local Catholic Charities agencies have been providing a wide range of vital services in their communities ranging from day care, adoption, and refugee resettlement to advocacy, counseling, and emergency food and housing. Today, the Catholic Charities network is made up of more than 62,000 staff and 243,000 volunteers. In addition, more than 6,100 individuals serve as volunteer members of local boards.

The national service center-Catholic Charities USA-was founded in 1910 as the National Conference of Catholic Charities by the Most Rev. Thomas J. Shahan and Rt. Rev. Msgr. William J. Kerby in cooperation with lay leaders of the Society of St. Vincent De Paul.

Catholic Charities USA provides its members a national voice, networking opportunities, training and technical assistance, program development, and financial support.

Catholic Charities USA has been commissioned by the U.S. Catholic bishops to represent the Catholic community in times of domestic disaster. For instance, in the network's largest disaster response effort in its history, more than 110 local Catholic Charities agencies in the Gulf Coast and across the country have been responding to the immediate and long-term needs of families affected by Hurricanes Katrina and Rita.

Catholic Charities USA's president represents North America before Caritas International-the international conference of Catholic Charities-maintaining contact wth the Catholic Charities movement throughout the world.

Publications: Charities USA, a quarterly membership magazine; an annual report; an annual survey of Catholic Charities services nationwide; and various publications on issues of concern to Catholic Charities agencies.

Catholic Network of Volunteer Service promotes, recruits and refers volunteers to missions in the United States and overseas. We represent nearly 200 faith-based volunteer programs worldwide and work with the U.S. dioceses, religious communities and the private sector to determine their needs for help. Catholic Network of Volunteer Service (CNVS) is committed to the goal that every Catholic man and woman be invited to consider a period of service in the missions, as a vital and important manifestation of the baptismal call of all Catholic people. Currently over 10,000 men and women are serving in CNVS member mission programs offering their gifts and abilities in full-time service to people in need and living their Catholic faith more fully. These volunteers are serving domestically for a summer, six months, a year or more, and they are serving internationally for two or more years at a time. They are single and married, recent college graduates and early retirees, doctors and teachers, parish ministers and social workers, community organizers, computer programmers, legal aides and more. Gatherings: Annual Conference; Formation Workshops, Training Seminars.

Publications: annual, Response: Directory of Volunteer Opportunities; monthly, How Can I Help?; quarterly, FaithWorks.

Awards: The Father George Mader Award, given annually to honor organizations and individuals who promote the value of lay mission service. The Bishop Joseph A. Francis Award to honor organizations and individuals who promote community service.

The National Association of Pastoral Musicians fosters the art of musical liturgy. The members of NPM serve the Catholic Church in the United States as musicians, clergy, liturgists, and other leaders of prayer. Regular parish membership includes both parish musicians and parish clergy. Individual membership is also available.

NPM programs include national and regional conventions for musicians and clergy, as well as institutes for cantors, choir directors, organists, guitarists and ensemble musicians in addition to programs on pastoral liturgy, chant, music with children, and handbells. NPM provides a Job Hotline to assist musicians seeking employment and parishes searching for musicians. The Association also sponsors certification programs for organists, cantors, and professional directors of music ministries.

The Association is directed by a 5-member Board of Directors, advised by a 40-member NPM Council and served by an 10-person staff. There are divisions for full-time directors of music ministries and for Catholic music educators as well as special interest sections for cantors, choir directors, organists, clergy, ensemble musicians, pianists, composers, military musicians, campus ministers, youth, composers, pastoral liturgy, chant, and musicians serving African American parishes, Hispanic communities, Asian/Pacific Rim communities, and religious congregations.

Publications include Pastoral Music (bimonthly journal); Pastoral Music Notebook (bimonthly newsletter), The Liturgical Singer (quarterly), as well as newsletters for clergy, organists, full-time directors, and music educators. Online publications include Pastoral Music E-Notes and Sunday Word for Pastoral Musicians.

The mission of the National Catholic Conference for Total Stewardship (NCCTS) is to initiate in dioceses and parishes the concept of total stewardship through a pastoral process called Celebrating Life as a Catholic Christian (CLCC). The concept joins the three basic elements of the bible: Evangelization, Discipleship and Service, and through the CLCC process presents them as a single unit not as separate apostolates. The process first updates active churchgoing Catholics in sound catechetics and eucharistic spirituality. At the same time the process prepares and motivates them to reach out to lapsed, non-regular church-going Catholics making person-to-person contact with them and with RCIA graduates. They join a Small Ecclesial Faith Community (SEFC) connected to the parish. Active parishoners in SEFC's constitute a welcoming environment for those in need of returning to the faith and those in need of retaining it. In them they experience Catholic fellowship, inter-personal sharing, communal and personal prayer and study official church teachings. Through the CLCC process returnees and recent converts are further formed in doctrine and spirituality for full membership in the Church, for encountering Christ in the sacraments, for enjoying "communion" with all Catholics and for Celebrating Life as Catholic Christians both in vocation and mission.

NCDC leads Catholic organizations toward excellence in their development ministries by providing opportunities for growth in leadership and excellence through conferences and networking. As the United States' largest association of religious philanthropies, NCDC affirms the mission of each of its members by working for and with them as fundraisers. The hallmark of NCDC is the promotion of the integrity of its member organizations to donors, the media and the general public. To this end, all members are required to fully adhere to the NCDC Code of Stewardship and Ethics and support the Donor Bill of Rights. Central to NCDC's existence are the many serivces provided to its membership: advocacy, regional seminars, the annual Conference and Exposition, informative publications, educational resources and other specialized services geared to meet member needs.

Square Miles 4,801.

Established a Diocese November 6, 1789; Established an Archdiocese April 8, 1808.

Comprises the City of Baltimore and Allegany, Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Carroll, Frederick, Garrett, Harford, Howard and Washington Counties.

By a Decree of the Sacred Congregation of the Propaganda, July 19, 1858, approved by His Holiness, Pius IX, July 25, 1858, "Prerogative of Place" was conferred on the Archdiocese of Baltimore. By the explicit words of said decree of the Holy See, the Archbishop of Baltimore takes precedence over all Archbishops of the United States (not Cardinals) in Councils, gatherings and meetings of whatever kind of the Hierarchy (in concillis, coetibus et comitiis quibuscumque) regardless of the seniority of other Archbishops in promotion or ordination. Decree signed by Cardinal Barnabo, August 15, 1858.

For legal titles of parishes and archdiocesan institutions, consult the Chancery Office.
